PROHIBITION REFERENDUM BEING DISCUSSED

DRYS AND WETS MAY FORMULATE A COMPROMISE

PLAN HAS TACIT INDORSEMENT OF SOME WETS AND A FEW DRYS

2 RESOLUTIONS TO BE INTRO-DUCED IN CONGRESS NEXT DECEMBER

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Washington, July 10.—A compromise plan for a national prohibition referendum next year is being discussed by dry and wet leaders behind the scenes here.

The plan has the tacit indorsement of some wets and a few drys but will not be openly brought forward until returns have been received on "feelers" put out by those suggesting the scheme.

The project is this:

1. Introduction of a resolution in congress next December for a substitute for the 18th amendment permitting state option on prohibition.

2. Adoption of this resolution by congress for submission to the various state legislatures for ratification with the proviso that the legislatures must have been elected after the proposal became an issue.

Such a proposal would receive the support of Senator William E. Borah, republican, Idaho, whose recent stand on the dry act has resulted in a boom by dry leaders to make him a 1928 presidential candidate.

Borah is strongly in favor of prohibition, but he would not object to a referendum, if it met his definition of what a referendum should be. He does not believe the referendum planned in New York state is a fair and impartial effort to get the views of the people.

Details of the plan have not been worked out. It has not yet been determined for instance what provision could be adopted to prevent shipment of liquor from an optional wet state into an optional dry state. Some such provision opposed to a return of conditions which prevailed under local option before prohibition when carloads of liquor were shipped from wet northern states into the dry south.

The plan likewise would relieve the government of enforcing an act which costs millions of dollars yearly. It would place responsibility for police enforcement of prohibition upon the states which desire it and would involve aid from the national government only toward preventing shipments in interstate commerce.

Sponsors of the project believe it is the most feasible plan to reconcile the views of the wet and dry states and would take prohibition out of the 1928 presidential campaign as a national issue.

DURKIN FOUND GUILTY BY JURY IN CHICAGO TRIAL

GUNMAN SHEIK MAY SERVE 35 YEAR JAIL SENTENCE

JURY SO RECOMMENDED, ONE
JUROR FAVORED HANGING

Chicago, July 10.—Martin Durkin must go to prison for 35 years for the murder of Federal Agent Edwin C. Shanahan.

The jury which heard the evidence in one of Chicago's most spectacular murder trials, returned its verdict of guilty at 8:45 A. M. and recommended the 35 year penalty after an all night deliberation in which a compromise was necessary.

After determining first that Durkin was guilty, the jury was split between the death penalty and a short term prison sentence. One juror held out hour after hour for a hanging verdict but finally relented and agreed to the 35 year compromise.

The jury's deliberations were so heated that newspaper reporters waiting just outside the conference room, heard all that went on inside, heard the jury's fifth ballot read, a ballot which for the first time settled Durkin's guilt.

Although the verdict had been reached more than 30 minutes before it was returned in open court, Durkin was kept in ignorance of its contents until he appeared in court.

None but attorneys, newspaper reporters and photographers and the immediate relatives of Durkin were permitted in the court room when the jury filed in with its verdict.

Durkin stood near the door which leads from the court room to the jail, nervously shifting from one foot to another. When the verdict was read, he dropped his head, but betrayed no signs of emotion. He was hurried back immediately to his jail cell before being given a chance to speak.

Members of Durkin's family, including his mother, had slept all night on court room benches, waiting for the jury's verdict. When it was returned they broke into weeping and Mrs. Hattie Durkin, the slayer's mother, shouted out:

"They are persecutors, persecutors! Oh! My poor boy!"

Martin's sisters tried in vain through their own tears to comfort their mother.

Attorneys for the state admitted they were keenly disappointed, expecting confidently that the verdict would provide at least for life imprisonment if not hanging. They indicated, however, they would not press a second murder charge, which is pending against Durkin.

"We have nothing to say," said Eugene McGarry, chief counsel for Durkin.

The murder of which Durkin was convicted was committed on Sunday, October 11, 1925. According to the testimony, Durkin was confronted with Shanahan in a south side garage. After a few moments of conversation there was an exchange of shots and Shanahan lay dead. It was Durkin's defense that he shot Shanahan in the belief that the federal officer was attempting to hold him up.

HEAT WAVE IN THE NORTHWEST BROKEN

FALLING INTERMITTENTLY

Sweltering in the most severe heat of the year, the east today looked forward to promised thunder showers to bring relief.

Five deaths were reported from heat prostrations in New York, where the temperature reached 83 degrees. Other deaths had been reported from the middle west which was generally cooler today with prospects that the hot spell had been broken. The heat took one life in Cleveland while storms and the heat caused five fatalities in Michigan.

Update New York found the mercury touching a new high mark for the summer. At Binghamton a temperature of 94 came within four degrees of breaking the heat record for that city.

Connecticut also experienced sultry weather and the beaches along Long Island Sound were crowded.

Boston reported a decline of 25 degrees, a northwest wind chilling the city.

Respite was general over the midwest and moderate weather was forecast over the week-end but another heat wave is reported en route from the Pacific northwest.

Meantime there was a snowstorm reported from Redding, Cal.

St. Paul, July 10.—(UP)—The heat wave in the northwest finally had been broken today by general cooling rains which fell intermittently.

The warm weather which threatened to follow in the wake of the cool spell has been averted and the weather bureau today forecast continued cool weather and additional showers.

The largest amount of precipitation was at Detroit, Minn., where 1.49 inches fell. The thermometer hovered in the middle 70's.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 10.—Relief from the heat wave in which Wisconsin has sweltered during the past three days and which took a toll of two lives and numerous prostrations came today.

A stiff northwest wind swept across the state and sent the mercury which had been climbing up around the 90 degree mark daily, below the 80 degree mark.

Chicago, July 10.—Definitely cooler weather spread over the northern part of the middle west today following rains and severe storms which yesterday broke up a heat wave of several days' standing.

Storms which swept over northern Indiana and southern Michigan caused four deaths and thousands of dollars in property damage, making the total fatalities due to heat and storms during the two day period in the midwest come to 25.

Precipitation was heavy over practically all of the northern states east of the Rocky Mountains. At Kansas City, Mo., 5.04 inches of rain fell during the day.

The cool weather will be short lived, the weather bureau predicted, saying that another intense heat wave is en route from the Pacific northwest.

DENIES STATE CHARGE OF BANK WRECK CONSPIRACY

BANKER, TAKES STAND IN HIS DEFENSE

MELBERG IN GRAND LARCENY OF $23,000

Buffalo, Minn., July 10.—(UP)—The state's charge of a colossal bank wrecking conspiracy was denied on the witness stand today by Hugo H. Sievers, former president of the First National Bank of Buffalo, who resumed testifying in his own defense.

Sievers is accused of aiding and abetting Carl Melberg, former president of the Maple Lake State bank, in the grand larceny of $23,000 from the institution. He began testifying late Friday after the state had rested its case, relating his story of the transaction with the Metropolitan National Bank of Minneapolis, on which the case hinges.

Before Sievers was called to the stand, Judge Arthur E. Giddings denied a defense motion for stoppage of the trial. The defense contended that until Melberg's case is disposed of, Sievers should not be tried for aiding and abetting him.

Sievers testified there was no fraud in the loan of $30,000 obtained from the Minneapolis bank. He said it was to increase the capital and surplus of the Maple Lake bank to $60,000 in compliance with a state banking department ruling. Four of the five members of the board of directors sanctioned the loan, he declared.

After the loan had been obtained through a note, it was renewed three times, $4,500 was paid off, then $2,500 was paid off and finally he and Melberg made good $23,000 remaining in addition to the interest, he said.

But before it closed its case, the state introduced testimony to the effect that double reimbursement had been obtained by Melberg and Sievers.

State witnesses testified that during May, 1925, a sight draft for $23,000 and a debit slip in a like amount were cashed, but that the debit slip never appeared at the Maple Lake bank until "some time in August," when it was said to have been produced at the request of state bank examiners.

With the state's case rested and provided the state does not consume much time in rebuttal, it is anticipated that Sievers' fate will reach the jury early next week, perhaps Tuesday.

POLICIES OF FINANCE MINISTER CAILLAUX FIND SUPPORT

2 VOTES OF CONFIDENCE PASSED
EARLY TODAY BY FRENCH

Success came just before 4 A. M. after Premier Briand had threatened another government collapse unless favorable action was taken by morning. A government measure granting the cabinet permission to enact necessary financial legislation by decree will be advanced immediately, it was understood.

POWER HOUSE MEN ARE ADDED TO THE STRIKERS

SECOND SUBWAY WRECK IN 24 HOURS RECORDED IN
NEW YORK

REPORTERS AND PHOTOGRAPHERS
BARRIED FROM TUBE
WRECK OCCURRED IN

New York, July 10.—(UP)—The addition of 246 power house men to the ranks of the striking subway and elevated employees of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company came today as the second subway wreck in 24 hours occurred.

The wreck was at 1:23 A. M. at the sharp curve near the Bowling Green subway station, 100 feet from the spot where a train went off the line yesterday.

The company said no one was injured. The seventh car of a 10-car Lexington Avenue train left the rails. Reporters and photographers were barred from the tube and information was given out by a company representative.

He said the motorman of the train, Lawrence Gunn, was a non-union man but recently qualified for operating duties.

Although the company did not disclose the cause of the derailment, it was understood it came after the motorman had run past warning signal lights.

Traffic was halted for more than an hour while the right of way was cleared.

The new wreck followed a day of increasing confusion in transportation facilities, marked by disorder during last night's rush when two trains stalled at 10th Street station in the Bronx and the 1,000 occupants including many women, insisted that doors be opened. The passengers walked along the rails to a point where they could reach the street. Later a third train stalled on the line and its passengers were also forced to walk.

THIS TIME COOLIDGE DIDN'T EVEN GET A BITE, FISHING

By JOHN MONTGOMERY
United Press Staff Correspondent
Summer White House, White Pine Camp, N. Y., July 10.—President Coolidge is considerably annoyed by the wide and not altogether favorable publicity given his fish story and he is likely to withhold news of results of future fishing.

At the press conference yesterday, the first to be held in the Adirondacks, the president's irritation was most apparent, answers to questions concerning the fish were blunt and sarcastic.

"I cannot see the importance of such an incident," the spokesman said sharply.

The spokesman went on to say in reply to those skeptical about the weight of the fish that in the president's opinion it was good enough to taste in preference to believing other men's fish stories.

He was smiling when he looked up but it was a crooked smile, reserved by the spokesman for occasions when he wished to hide his displeasure.

Yesterday the president went fishing again. He stood on a bridge across a little inlet into the lake and cast for about an hour. He didn't even get a bite.

PEN 14 MEN IN PRISON MINE 750 FT. UNDERGROUND

FATE OF GUARDS AT LANSING IS ENTIRELY UNKNOWN

TEST AGAINST ALLEGED
SHORTAGE OF SHEETS

Lansing, Kas., July 10.—(UP)—Officials of the Kansas state prison were prepared today to starve out if necessary 275 convicts who mutinied and are holding captive 14 guards in the prison mine 750 feet beneath the ground.

The prisoners mutinied yesterday noon and have since refused to surrender. Fate of the guards who were armed only with clubs is unknown.

The convicts' revolt was in protest against an alleged shortage of sheets in the cell houses. When the mine cage containing dinner for the shaft crew was lowered yesterday, the convicts seized the cage, thrust heavy timbers through it and the hoist has been unable to break through the timbers and lift the cage.

Negotiations with leaders of the mutiny to send a committee to the top to talk over the difficulty have failed. Officials said they viewed the mutiny as a bloodless revolt against the sleeping conditions.

SEN. PUTNAM NEW HEAD OF BAR ASSOCIATION

BODY OF SUICIDE IS SENT HOME

Olivia, Minn., July 10.—(UP)—The body of B. Olson, 28, a garage owner of Whelan, in Fillmore county, who committed suicide while visiting friends here, was returned to his home today.

While the McDowells were working around the farm, Olson took a rifle from the wall of the home, appropriated shells from a shelf and went out in the woods and shot himself.

PLACED IRON BAR ON TRACK TO WRECK TRAIN

Appleton, Minn., July 10.—(UP)—An attempt to wreck a Great Northern train has been cleared by the arrest of two 14 year old boys, who admitted having placed a heavy iron bar on the rails several weeks ago.

The boys said they did it "for excitement."

A wreck was averted when a railroad man found the obstruction and removed it.

Swallowed a Quarter; Won Trip to Hospital

Chokio, Minn., July 10.—(UP)—The three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Herberster of Chokio has his trip to Minneapolis after all.

When Mr. and Mrs. Herberster gave the boy a quarter with which to buy ice cream, he became excited at the prospect that it would buy a trip to Minneapolis and swallowed the coin. But he made the journey anyhow, although it was to a Minneapolis hospital, where surgeons removed the quarter from his body.

Sweltering in the most severe heat of the year, the east today looked forward to promised thunder showers to bring relief.

Five deaths were reported from heat prostrations in New York, where the temperature reached 83 degrees. Other deaths had been reported from the middle west which was generally cooler today with prospects that the hot spell had been broken. The heat took one life in Cleveland while storms and the heat caused five fatalities in Michigan.

Upstate New York found the mercury touching a new high mark for the summer. At Binghamton a temperature of 94 came within four degrees of breaking the heat record for that city.

Connecticut also experienced sultry weather and the beaches along Long Island Sound were crowded. Boston reported a decline of 25 degrees, a northwest wind chilling the city.

Respite was general over the midwest and moderate weather was forecast over the week-end but another heat wave is reported en route from the Pacific northwest.

Meantime there was a snowstorm reported from Redding, Cal.

St. Paul, July 10.—(UP)—The heat wave in the northwest finally had been broken today by general cooling rains which fell intermittently.

The warm weather which threatened to follow in the wake of the cool spell has been averted and the weather bureau today forecast continued cool weather and additional showers.

The largest amount of precipitation was at Detroit, Minn., where 1.49 inches fell. The thermometer hovered in the middle 70's.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 10.—Relief from the heat wave in which Wisconsin has sweltered during the past three days and which took a toll of two lives and numerous prostrations came today.

A stiff northwest wind swept across the state and sent the mercury which had been climbing up around the 90 degree mark daily, below the 80 degree mark.

Chicago, July 10.—Definitely cooler weather spread over the northern part of the middle west today following rains and severe storms which yesterday broke up a heat wave of several days' standing.

Storms which swept over northern Indiana and southern Michigan caused four deaths and thousands of dollars in property damage, making the total fatalities due to heat and storms during the two day period in the midwest come to 25.

Precipitation was heavy over practically all of the northern states east of the Rocky Mountains. At Kansas City, Mo., 5.04 inches of rain fell during the day.

The cool weather will be short lived, the weather bureau predicted, saying that another intense heat wave is en route from the Pacific northwest.

DENIES STATE
CHARGE OF BANK WRECK CONSPIRACY

BANKER, TAKES STAND IN HIS DEFENSE

IS ACCUSED OF AIDING CARL MELBERG IN GRAND LAR-CENY OF $23,000

Buffalo, Minn., July 10.—(UP)—The state's charge of a colossal bank wrecking conspiracy was denied on the witness stand today by Hugo H. Sievers, former president of the First National Bank of Buffalo, who resumed testifying in his own defense.

Sievers is accused of aiding and abetting Carl Melberg, former president of the Maple Lake State bank, in the grand larceny of $23,000 from the institution. He began testifying late Friday after the state had rested its case, relating his story of the transaction with the Metropolitan National Bank of Minneapolis, on which the case hinges.

Before Sievers was called to the stand, Judge Arthur E. Giddings denied a defense motion for stoppage of the trial. The defense contended that until Melberg's case is disposed of, Sievers should not be tried for aiding and abetting him.

Sievers testified there was no fraud in the loan of $30,000 obtained from the Minneapolis bank. He said it was to increase the capital and surplus of the Maple Lake bank to $60,000 in compliance with a state banking department ruling. Four of the five members of the board of directors sanctioned the loan, he declared.

After the loan had been obtained through a note, it was renewed three times, $4,500 was paid off, then $2,500 was paid off and finally he and Melberg made good $23,000 remaining in addition to the interest, he said.

But before it closed its case, the state introduced testimony to the effect that double reimbursement had been obtained by Melberg and Sievers.

State witnesses testified that during May, 1925, a sight draft for $23,000 and a debit slip in a like amount were cashed, but that the debit slip never appeared at the Maple Lake bank until "some time in August," when it was said to have been produced at the request of state bank examiners.

With the state's case rested and provided the state does not consume much time in rebuttal, it is anticipated that Sievers' fate will reach the jury early next week, perhaps Tuesday.

2 VOTES OF CONFIDENCE PASSED
EARLY TODAY BY FRENCH

Paris, July 10.—(UP)—Two votes of confidence, passed early today, heralded the victory of the Briand government and the policies of Finance Minister Joseph Caillaux.

A preliminary vote of confidence was obtained when the chamber voted down a socialist measure, 324 to 203, and then expressed approval of the finance policy in a vote of confidence, 269 to 247.

Success came just before 4 A. M. after Premier Briand had threatened another government collapse unless favorable action was taken by morning. A government measure granting the cabinet permission to enact necessary financial legislation by decree will be advanced immediately, it was understood.

POWER HOUSE
MEN ARE ADDED TO THE STRIKERS

HOURS RECORDED IN
NEW YORK

REPORTERS AND PHOTOGRAPH-ERS BARRED FROM TUBE
WRECK OCCURRED IN

New York, July 10.—(UP)—The addition of 246 power house men to the ranks of the striking subway and elevated employees of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company came today as the second subway wreck in 24 hours occurred.

The wreck was at 1:23 A. M. at the sharp curve near the Bowling Green subway station, 100 feet from the spot where a train went off the line yesterday.

The company said no one was injured. The seventh car of a 10-car Lexington Avenue train left the rails. Reporters and photographers were barred from the tube and information was given out by a company representative.

He said the motorman of the train, Lawrence Gumm, was a non-union man but recently qualified for operating duties.

Although the company did not disclose the cause of the derailment, it was understood it came after the motorman had run past warning signal lights.

Traffic was halted for more than an hour while the right of way was cleared.

The new wreck followed a day of increasing confusion in transportation facilities, marked by disorder during last night's rush when two trains stalled at 10th Street station in the Bronx and the 1,000 occupants including many women, insisted that doors be opened. The passengers walked along the rails to a point where they could reach the street. Later a third train stalled on the line and its passengers were also forced to walk.

THIS TIME COOLIDGE DIDN'T EVEN GET A BITE, FISHING

By JOHN MONTGOMERY
United Press Staff Correspondent
Summer White House, White Pine Camp, N. Y., July 10.—President Coolidge is considerably annoyed by the wide and not altogether favorable publicity given his fish story and he is likely to withhold news of results of future fishing.

At the press conference yesterday, the first to be held in the Adirondacks, the president's irritation was most apparent, answers to questions concerning the fish were blunt and sarcastic.

"I cannot see the importance of such an incident," the spokesman said sharply.

The spokesman went on to say in reply to those skeptical about the weight of the fish that in the president's opinion it was good enough to taste in preference to believing other men's fish stories. He was smiling when he looked up but it was a crooked smile, reserved by the spokesman for occasions when he wished to hide his displeasure.

Yesterday the president went fishing again. He stood on a bridge across a little inlet into the lake and cast for about an hour. He didn't even get a bite.

PEN 14 MEN IN PRISON MINE 750
FT. UNDERGROUND

FATE OF GUARDS AT LANSING IS ENTIRELY UN-KNOWN

TEST AGAINST ALLEGED

Lansing, Kas., July 10.—(UP)—Officials of the Kansas state prison were prepared today to starve out if necessary 275 convicts who mutinied and are holding captive 14 guards in the prison mine 750 feet beneath the ground.

The prisoners mutinied yesterday noon and have since refused to surrender. Fate of the guards who were armed only with clubs is unknown.

The convicts' revolt was in protest against an alleged shortage of sheets in the cell houses. When the mine cage containing dinner for the shaft crew was lowered yesterday, the convicts seized the cage, thrust heavy timbers through it and the hoist has been unable to break through the timbers and lift the cage.

Negotiations with leaders of the mutiny to send a committee to the top to talk over the difficulty have failed. Officials said they viewed the mutiny as a bloodless revolt against the sleeping conditions.

SEN. PUTNAM
NEW HEAD OF
BAR ASSOCIATION

Duluth, Minn., July 10.—(UP)—Senator Frank E. Putnam of Blue Earth, Minn., is the new president of the Minnesota Bar Association. He was elected Friday at the final business session, succeeding Howard T. Abbott of Duluth.

The convention closed with a banquet Friday night at which J. L. Washburn of Duluth, lauded Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg and Pierce Butler, associate justice of the supreme court.

BODY OF SUICIDE IS SENT HOME

Olivia, Minn., July 10.—(UP)—The body of B. Olson, 28, a garage owner of Whelan, in Fillmore county, who committed suicide while visiting friends here, was returned to his home today.

The body was found early Friday in a group of trees near the S. J. McDowell home, four miles north of here.

While the McDowells were working around the farm, Olson took a rifle from the wall of the home, appropriated shells from a shelf and went out in the woods and shot himself.

PLACED IRON BAR ON TRACK TO WRECK TRAIN

Appleton, Minn., July 10.—(UP)—An attempt to wreck a Great Northern train has been cleared by the arrest of two 14 year old boys, who admitted having placed a heavy iron bar on the rails several weeks ago.

They boys said they did it "for excitement."

A wreck was averted when a railroad man found the obstruction and removed it.

Swallowed a Quarter;
Won Trip to Hospital

Chokio, Minn., July 10.—(UP)—The three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Herbsht of Chokio has his trip to Minneapolis after all.

When Mr. and Mrs. Herbsht gave the boy a quarter with which to buy ice cream, he became excited at the prospect that it would buy a trip to Minneapolis and swallowed the coin.

But he made the journey anyhow, although it was to a Minneapolis hospital, where surgeons removed the quarter from his body.

Drop Cloche From Paris Hat Styles

Small Model Still in Vogue; Large Chapeau Shown for Summer Wear.

The "hat consciousness" idea being broadcast contradicts all our traditions, which have so long been directed to the end of forgetting clothes and of being either sincerely or at least politely unconscious of our dress, including our bonnet, says a fashion writer in the New York Times. Now we are counseled to become keenly alive and observant, especially of millinery, and to evolve from our inner consciousness an appreciation of our type and artistic possibilities. American women are moving constantly further away from the old-time conventions and they are following less the fashions as such, whatever they happen to be, in order to express themselves in terms of their own individuality.

Sometimes there seem to be long periods of monotony in which nothing but the commonplace is reflected in gowns and hats. It seems a stupid inconsistency when the form these things take is unlovely, having no quality of art or grace. When ennui does finally pass, there is compensation for both the milliner who designs and the woman who wears the freshly inspired creations. This season there is much of art significance and definite style in the millinery, more beauty and achievement in color. Artists say that understanding of color in dress is just making itself felt, and certainly it is illuminating the whole world of fashion in woman's dress.

Little Hat a Favorite.

A little hat shaped like an inverted saucer has been for a surprising length of time the center of the fashion picture. Plain, unadorned, to many exceedingly uncomfortable, with not one line of grace or other distinction than its name, the "cloche" has become and has tenaciously remained in style. Numbers, cheapness and all that goes to make common and kill a mode has had slight effect upon this hat species. Season after season it has been beloved alike of the woman who is exclusive and of her who must be economical.

At the beginning of this spring millinery exhibitions from Paris and at home showed many of the familiar cloche shapes. The first were in felt, in beaver, in stitched satin, silk or cloth, and later in straw, or straw combined with silk. With a slightly varied brim treatment, a bit more elasticity in trimming, the cloche, by that or some other name, still has its friends in this part of the world.

Gradually the tight, round shape has been succeeded, however, by the Gigolo and other variants of foreign authorship, some of them historically reminiscent and picturesque. In each of them the crown is high and in the Gigolo and shapes of similar line and feeling the draped material—whether it is a cluster of folds, a few wrinkles or a soft swathing of the goods—has that appearance of sophisticated simplicity that is very misleading. The effect is really an evidence of skill, and most amateur milliners who try

The foundation for almost all of the draped hats is square, far more becoming to most women than the round line, and one sees now fewer "moon" faces framed in a halo of cloth or straw.

Among Distinctive Shapes.

The distinctive shapes accepted by American women of fashion come from houses which have combined this year in rescuing the useful, almost indispensable small hat from the dullness of repetitions. Reboux's is a brilliant collection in which are many original designs of every type, from the most practical "outing" shape and "tailleur" to the sort of hat shown under the inclusive title of "brimless," which means a toque of one kind or another.

In each and all of these the crown is creased, folded or draped—just so it will not be a plain unbroken surface. One of the first spring models from Reboux has been very successful and is likely to carry on for several months. This hat is built of sangha in oatmeal—one of the latest shades—and is trimmed with a band and two ornamental ends of brown grosgrain ribbon. The crown, high at the back and sloping toward the front, is gathered into a cluster of little folds at one side; and the brim, though narrow, is drawn low, shading the eyes, and turns sharply up across the back.

It is said of Reboux that the crown of every hat from this house, whatever its material, is creased, which appears to be the idea of most millinery designers. Apart from the more or less vagabond hat, the brimless is presented in several models of compelling attraction. In a conspicuously smart design, a turban with high crown softly draped, the fullness swung toward the back, is of green straw. It entirely covers the coiffure, brow and ears, and has two bands of grosgrain ribbon an inch and a half wide drawn around the crown, the first close to the edge and each finished with a tailored bow overlapping at one side.

The straw in the hat is one of the many new materials of this season—delicate as lace, supple and yet wiry. In many of the new shapes these straws are used with grosgrain ribbon to build the hat itself, without a vestige of trimming, as in a rather extreme model from Agnes in which black and green are put together. This hat is of the delicate green straw with black grosgrain silk used at the back, over the crown and along the narrow roll brim at either side. Another brilliant model omits the straw and is made together of wide grosgrain ribbon, again in that very fashionable partnership of beige and brown.

Uses Velvet Beret.

Departing from a self-established mode, Reboux makes a velvet beret that is draped low at a rakish angle over one ear, and another hat of opposite type in two-toned satin and grosgrain ribbon, repeating the beige and brown scheme. Countless other styles in the small hat are shown from prominent houses at Paris that have been well received and widely copied on this side.

Camille Roger makes a chic little hat of black felt and tricot, having a square crown with the materials contrasted in sections, so to speak, the very narrow brim rolled upward back and front, and a wee cravat bow to mark the middle of the back. Jane Blanchot makes a small hat all of grosgrain with a modified crown draped with the ribbon, a narrow brim to shade the eyes, and an ornament of fancy feathers in front.

A pretty millinery ensemble from this clever designer has the hat of black straw, the brim bent down at one side, rolling away from the coiffure on the other side. Grosgrain ribbon in black and four shades of pink are drawn around the crown, with a strap end at the back, and this delightful and very modish combination of color is repeated in a scarf that winds once about the throat.

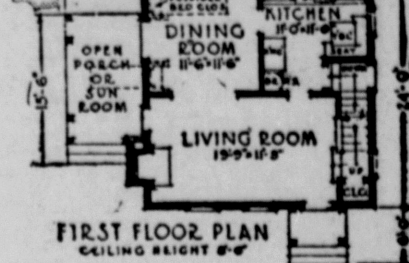

The charm of color monotone is illustrated by Lemonnier in a close hat of draped straw of fine quality called silk alpaca, all in one shade of gray-green.

For the soft silk hat of ribbon or taffeta or even the new summer felts there is a short, stubby hatpin. The crystal and colored glass tops of these pins contribute just the right amount of color and trimming required on such hats.

Marcasite work is combined with sterling silver in earrings in loops, ovals and pendant designs. Onyx, pearls and colored stones are also frequently combined.

Charming sunshades of an elaborate kind are made of fine stuffs. These include taffeta, grosgrain, which is particularly smart this year, chiffon ribbon and lace. Very handsome parasols in the canopy lines brought out last season are covered with taffeta, shifted, finely plaited or ruffled. Many rows of grosgrain, moire or taffeta ribbon are used for some, often illustrating delightful schemes in color. Chantilly lace, both black and white, over the same or another color, makes a bit of elegance in a parasol.

Housewife of Moderate Means Puts O. K. on This

ditional lines, it has nevertheless a surprisingly modern appearance and adapts itself equally well into the rural or suburban environment. By merely shifting the open porch or sunroom to the back of the dining room instead of on the side, this house can easily be put on a thirty-foot lot, although a fifty-foot lot makes a much better investment where it is feasible.

The exterior walls are of siding, white or cream, with shutters painted green for contrast. The roof is of weathered shingles and the well-proportioned chimney is of common brick whitewashed.

Simple lattice work on both the porches suggests planting an abundance of wisteria, clematis, ramblers and other climbing plants which together with some shrubbery relieve the severity of outline.

©Colotechnic Institute, Chicago, 1926

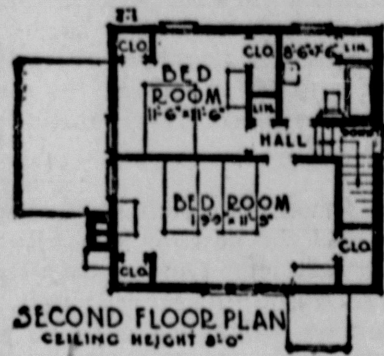

Every room has a double exposure. The living-room is especially well ventilated, having windows or outside doors on three sides and a clear sweep through into the dining room on the remaining side. There is the open fireplace which one has come to look for in every well planned house and about which family life centers during the cold winter months. Unless the dining room is shut off with French doors, it would be well to use the same decorating scheme for both rooms, in order to maintain harmony between them and to give a sense of spaciousness.

An unique feature is the provision made in the plans for two built-in beds down stairs, one on the porch for the fresh air addict and another in the dining room, beneath the double windows, to be used in times of illness or for the unexpected guest.

The kitchen is small, like all up-to-date ones, but is compactly arranged. In addition to the supply of closets already described, careful planning has placed the sink beneath one window, with the cupboards on either hand. One corner allows space for a table and chairs, or a built-in breakfast nook if desired, with a window to make one's work more pleasant. The inside entrance saves many steps over the old style back door.

The upstairs contains only two bedrooms but each is of good size and the bathroom is unusually large. Where an extra room is desired for a study or playroom or simply for storage, space in the basement may easily be partitioned off with sheets of celotex, the cane fibre board which is sound-deadening as well as resistant to heat or cold. Left plain or artistically decorated, this is the easiest and most economical way of finishing off unused space.

The general construction of this house is in keeping with the sensible floor plan. The value of the building has gone not into frills and unnecessary externals but into such worthwhile features as good plumbing, hard-wood floors, rust-proof gutters and complete celotex insulation, walls and roof, to cut down the heating costs in winter and to keep the house cool in summer. The cost of building this house will vary of course with the locality and with grade of materials employed, but taken all in all, it can be erected with a considerable saving over the less expertly planned houses of the same general type.

Little Visits

Around the Rural Section

W. H. Triplett

Written especially for the Dispatch by W. H. Triplett, travelling editor for this paper and The Farmer of St. Paul.

Due to the heavy rain throughout the greater part of the day, the writer made few visits, consequently the Little Visits are few. The side roads were almost too slippery to drive on. In fact we saw an Iowa car being pulled out of the ditch on the Long Lake road. The rain came at a good time to help the oats in filling out. The fact that the time is short for farmers who are heavy in the dairy enterprise who have no silo, should give thought to the building of a silo as this is the right time of the year to build them. I predict that the man that has the silo will make more money than the man who has none. The value of the silo is no longer a debatable question. It has been proven time and again that a silo will pay for itself, in the hay it saves and the increase in milk production it brings about. The advantages are many, but some of the most important are: silage even from plants with coarse stalks such as corn are eaten practically without waste. On the other hand, from 20-35 per cent of dry corn fodder, even if of good quality, is usually wasted. The use of silage thus permits the keeping of more stock on a given area of land, such as we have in this community.

Silage furnishes a high quality of succulent feed that is desirable at all seasons of the year. Last but not least, when crops are properly ensiled, less of the nutrients are wasted through the fermentations which take place than are lost when the forage is secured as dry fodder. The cost of silage per ton will vary widely depending on the price of labor, the yield per acre and the rent of land. A recent experiment at the U. of M. Experiment Station, showed that it cost $18.93 per acre which includes rent of land, seed, labor, interest and depreciation on machinery and in fact everything which is involved in the making of silage.

The value of corn silage for cows, is worth about one third as much as legume hay. For fattening cattle, one ton of corn silage will save over 227 pounds of corn and 605 pounds of legume hay. With concentrates at $20 per ton and legume hay at $14 per ton, good silage is thus worth $6.50 per ton for fattening cattle. The amount of silage commonly fed per head daily to the various classes of stock is about as follows: dairy cows, 30-50 pounds; 12-20 pounds for dairy heifers; 30-50

pounds for beef cattle. Of course the amount will vary with the size of the animal. The size of a silo for a farmer to build will depend on the number of animals he has. It should be of such diameter that in the cooler part of the year, at least two inches of silage will be removed from the entire surface daily, in order to keep the silage from spoiling. To those interested in building a silo, we will gladly give information in regard to same.

We called on Dick Sagli for the second time today and we learned that he had come to this country 30 years ago when it was wild and woody. All he had was a team and a pitch fork. He now has a modern, well improved farm, with electricity and running water. At present he is milking 16 cows of Red Poll breed that not only bring in a good income through the milk pail but also make a high quality of beef. Mr. Sagli seeded two acres of alfalfa but due to the large per cent of cockle in the seed it was choked out. There is something wrong with the seed law for the firm from which he bought, as when one buys certified seed he is supposed to get at least 99 per cent pure seed.

W. T. Carlson is not a regular farmer, although he is renting 40 acres of pasture and the buildings. He is a contractor by trade, consequently does no farming.

Fred Larson was remodeling his barn and putting in a track in order to save time and labor in making hay. He has 40 acres and rents an additional 140 acres. His major enterprise is dairying, and he retails the cream to Brainerd stores.

Charles Johnson has farmed 120 acres for the past four years. At present he is milking 22 cows of Holstein breed, selling the milk to Haydon's ice cream company. He has a small patch of alfalfa and plans on seeding more the coming year as he says it is the only thing for the dairy cow.

Gust Franzen works in the tie plant at Brainerd and farms 80 acres on the side, raising a number of pigs and chickens.

F. W. Lasher worked in Brainerd up to a year ago but moved out on a farm of 229 acres as one can be more independent on the farm. Mrs. Lasher's mother came last night after an extended visit in Canada and she reports that crops look fine up there. Mrs. Lasher formerly lived

Drop Cloche From Paris Hat Styles

Small Model Still in Vogue; Large Chapeau Shown for Summer Wear.

The "hat consciousness" idea being broadcast contradicts all our traditions, which have so long been directed to the end of forgetting clothes and of being either sincerely or at least politely unconscious of our dress, including our bonnet, says a fashion writer in the New York Times. Now we are counseled to become keenly alive and observant, especially of millinery, and to evolve from our inner consciousness an appreciation of our type and artistic possibilities. American women are moving constantly further away from the old-time conventions and they are following less the fashions as such, whatever they happen to be, in order to express themselves in terms of their own individuality.

Sometimes there seem to be long periods of monotony in which nothing but the commonplace is reflected in gowns and hats. It seems a stupid inconsistency when the form these things take is unlovely, having no quality of art or grace. When ennui does finally pass, there is compensation for both the milliner who designs and the woman who wears the freshly inspired creations. This season there is much of art significance and definite style in the millinery, more beauty and achievement in color. Artists say that understanding of color in dress is just making itself felt, and certainly it is illuminating the whole world of fashion in woman's dress.

Little Hat a Favorite.

A little hat shaped like an inverted saucer has been for a surprising length of time the center of the fashion picture. Plain, unflattering, to many exceedingly uncomfortable, with not one line of grace or other distinction than its name, the "cloche" has become and has tenaciously remained in style. Numbers, cheapness and all that goes to make common and kill a mode has had slight effect upon this hat species. Season after season it has been beloved alike of the woman who is exclusive and of her who must be economical.

At the beginning of this spring millinery exhibitions from Paris and at home showed many of the familiar cloche shapes. The first were in felt, in beaver, in stitched satin, silk or cloth, and later in straw, or straw combined with silk. With a slightly varied brim treatment, a bit more elasticity in trimming, the cloche, by that or some other name, still has its friends in this part of the world.

Gradually the tight, round shape has been succeeded, however, by the Gigolo and other variants of foreign authorship, some of them historically reminiscent and picturesque. In each of them the crown is high and in the Gigolo and shapes of similar line and feeling the draped material—whether it is a cluster of folds, a few wrinkles or a soft swathing of the goods—has that appearance of sophisticated simplicity that is very misleading. The effect is really an evidence of skill, and most amateur milliners who try

The foundation for almost all of the draped hats is square, far more becoming to most women than the round line, and one sees now fewer "moon" faces framed in a halo of cloth or straw.

Among Distinctive Shapes.

The distinctive shapes accepted by American women of fashion come from houses which have combined this year in rescuing the useful, almost indispensable small hat from the dullness of repetitions. Reboux's is a brilliant collection in which are many original designs of every type, from the most practical "outing" shape and "tailleur" to the sort of hat shown under the inclusive title of "brimless," which means a toque of one kind or another.

In each and all of these the crown is creased, folded or draped—just as it will not be a plain unbroken surface. One of the first spring models from Reboux has been very successful and is likely to carry on for several months. This hat is built of sangha in oatmeal—one of the latest shades—and is trimmed with a band and two ornamental ends of brown grosgrain ribbon. The crown, high at the back and sloping toward the front, is gathered into a cluster of little folds at one side; and the brim, though narrow, is drawn low, shading the eyes, and turns sharply up across the back.

It is said of Reboux that the crown of every hat from this house, whatever its material, is creased, which appears to be the idea of most millinery designers. Apart from the more or less vagabond hat, the brimless is presented in several models of compelling attraction. In a conspicuously smart design, a turban with high crown softly draped, the fullness swung toward the back, is of green straw. It entirely covers the coiffure, brow and ears, and has two bands of grosgrain ribbon an inch and a half wide drawn around the crown, the first close to the edge and each finished with a tailored bow overlapping at one side.

The straw in the hat is one of the many new materials of this season—delicate as lace, supple and yet wiry. In many of the new shapes these straws are used with grosgrain ribbon to build the hat itself, without a vestige of trimming, as in a rather extreme model from Agnes in which black and green are put together. This hat is of the delicate green straw with black grosgrain silk used at the back, over the crown and along the narrow roll brim at either side. Another brimless model omits the straw and is made together of wide grosgrain ribbon, again in that very fashionable partnership of beige and brown.

Uses Velvet Beret.

Departing from a self-established mode, Reboux makes a velvet beret that is draped low at a rakish angle over one ear, and another hat of opposite type in two-toned satin and grosgrain ribbon, repeating the beige and brown scheme. Countless other styles in the small hat are shown from prominent houses at Paris that have been well received and widely copied on this side.

Camille Roger makes a chic little hat of black felt and tricet, having a square crown with the materials contrasted in sections, so to speak, the very narrow brim rolled upward back and front, and a wee cravat bow to mark the middle of the back. Jane Blanchot makes a small hat all of grosgrain with a modified crown draped with the ribbon, a narrow brim to shade the eyes, and an ornament of fancy feathers in front.

A pretty millinery ensemble from this clever designer has the hat of black straw, the brim bent down at one side, rolling away from the coiffure on the other side. Grosgrain ribbon in black and four shades of pink are drawn around the crown, with a strap end at the back, and this delightful and very modish combination of color is repeated in a scarf that winds once about the throat.

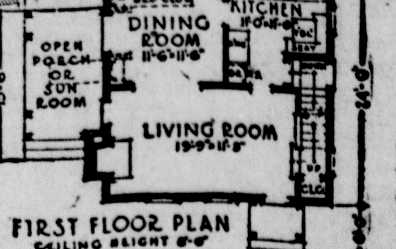

The charm of color monotone is illustrated by Lemonnier in a close hat of draped straw of fine quality called silk alpaca, all in one shade of gray-green.

For the soft silk hat of ribbon or taffeta or even the new summer felts there is a short, stubby hatpin. The crystal and colored glass tops of these pins contribute just the right amount of color and trimming required on such hats.

Marcasite work is combined with sterling silver in earrings in loops, ovals and pendant designs. Onyx, pearls and colored stones are also frequently combined.

Charming sunshades of an elaborate kind are made of fine stuffs. These include taffeta, grosgrain, which is particularly smart this year, chiffon ribbon and lace. Very handsome parasols in the canopy lines brought out last season are covered with taffeta, shifted, finely plaited or ruffled. Many rows of grosgrain, moire or taffeta ribbon are used for some, often illustrating delightful schemes in color. Chantilly lace, both black and white, over the same or another color, makes a bit of elegance in a parasol, ditional lines, it has nevertheless a surprisingly modern appearance and adapts itself equally well into the rural or suburban environment. By merely shifting the open porch or sunroom to the back of the dining room instead of on the side, this house can easily be put on a thirty-foot lot, although a fifty-foot lot makes a much better investment where it is feasible.

The exterior walls are of siding, white or cream, with shutters painted green for contrast. The roof is of weathered shingles and the well-proportioned chimney is of common brick whitewashed.

Simple lattice work on both the porches suggests planting an abundance of wisteria, clematis, ramblers and other climbing plants which together with some shrubbery relieve the severity of outline.

In the interest of economy, all hall space has been avoided except the small passage on the second floor. On the other hand, closet space has been used profusely and should delight the woman of the house. Downstairs are the ever handy clothes closet right beside the front door, a broom closet and two china closets in the kitchen. Upstairs are two clothes closets in each bed room and two good-sized linen closets as well.

Every room has a double exposure. The living-room is especially well ventilated, having windows or outside doors on three sides and a clear sweep through into the dining room on the remaining side. There is the open fireplace which one has come to look for in every well planned house and about which family life centers during the cold winter months. Unless the dining room is shut off with French doors, it would be well to use the same decorating scheme for both rooms, in order to maintain harmony between them and to give a sense of spaciousness.

An unique feature is the provision made in the plans for two built-in beds down stairs, one on the porch and the fresh air addict and another in the dining room, beneath the double windows, to be used in times of illness or for the unexpected guest.

The kitchen is small, like all up-to-date ones, but is compactly arranged. In addition to the supply of closets already described, careful planning has placed the sink beneath one window, with the cupboards on either hand. The cupboards are either hand-placed or the unexpected guest.

The general construction of this house is in keeping with the sensible floor plan. The value of the building has gone not into frills and unnecessary externals but into such worthwhile features as good plumbing, hard-

Little Visits Around the Rural Section

W. H. Triplett

Written especially for the Dispatch by W. H. Triplett, travelling editor for this paper and The Farmer of St. Paul.

Due to the heavy rain throughout the greater part of the day, the writer made few visits, consequently the Little Visits are few. The side roads were almost too slippery to drive on. In fact we saw an Iowa car being pulled out of the ditch on the Long Lake road. The rain came at a good time to help the oats in filling out. The fact that the time is short farmers who are heavy in the dairy-farming enterprise who have no silo, should give thought to the building of a silo as this is the right time of the year to build them. I predict that the man that has the silo will make more money than the man who has none. The value of the silo is no longer a debatable question. It has been proven time and again that a silo will pay for itself, in the hay it saves and the increase in milk production it brings about. The advantages are many, but some of the most important are; silage even from plants with coarse stalks such as corn are eaten practically without waste. On the other hand, from 20-35 per cent of dry corn fodder, even if of good quality, is usually wasted. The use of silage thus permits the keeping of more stock on a given area of land, such as we have in this community.

Silage furnishes a high quality of succulent feed that is desirable at all seasons of the year. Last but not least, when crops are properly ensiled, less of the nutrients are wasted through the fermentations which take place than are lost when the forage is secured as dry fodder. The cost of silage per ton will vary widely depending on the price of labor, the yield per acre and the rent of land. A recent experiment at the U. of M. Experiment Station, showed that it cost $18.98 per acre which includes rent of land, seed, labor, interest and depreciation on machinery and in fact everything which is involved in the making of silage.

The value of corn silage for cows, is worth about one third as much as legume hay. For fattening cattle, one ton of corn silage will save over 227 pounds of corn and 605 pounds of legume hay. With concentrates at $20 per ton and legume hay at $14 per ton, good silage is thus worth $6.50 per ton for fattening cattle. The amount of silage commonly fed per head daily to the various classes of stock is about as follows: dairy cows, 30-50 pounds; 12-20 pounds for dairy heifers; 20-50

pounds for beef cattle. Of course the amount will vary with the size of the animal. The size of a silo for a farmer to build will depend on the number of animals he has. It should be of such diameter that in the cooler part of the year, at least two inches of silage will be removed from the entire surface daily, in order to keep the silage from spoiling. To those interested in building a silo, we will gladly give information in regard to same.

We called on Dick Sagli for the second time today and we learned that he had come to this country 30 years ago when it was wild and woody. All he had was a team and a pitch fork. He now has a modern, well improved farm, with electricity and running water. At present he is milking 16 cows of Red Poll breed that not only bring in a good income through the milk pail but also make a high quality of beef. Mr. Sagli seeded two acres of alfalfa but due to the large per cent of cockle in the seed it was choked out. There is something wrong with the seed law or the firm from which he bought, as when one buys certified seed he is supposed to get at least 99 per cent pure seed.

W. T. Carlson is not a regular farmer, although he is renting 40 acres of pasture and the buildings. He is a contractor by trade, consequently does no farming.

Fred Larson was remodeling his barn and putting in a track in order to save time and labor in making hay. He has 40 acres and rents an additional 140 acres. His major enterprise is dairying, and he retails the cream to Brainerd stores.

Charles Johnson has farmed 120 acres for the past four years. At present he is milking 22 cows of Holstein breed, selling the milk to Haydon's ice cream company. He has a small patch of alfalfa and plans on seeding more the coming year as he says it is the only thing for the dairy cow.

Gust Franzen works in the tie plant at Brainerd and farms 80 acres on the side, raising a number of pigs and chickens.

F. W. Lasher worked in Brainerd up to a year ago but moved out on a farm of 229 acres as one can be more independent on the farm. Mrs. Lasher's mother came last night after an extended visit in Canada and she reports that crops look fine up there. Mrs. Lasher formerly lived

THE PRESIDENT'S FISH

THE BRAINERD DISPATCH was the first to note the diminutive size of President Coolidge's catch, a three pound pickerel and sent in a special story to the United Press which tagged along with the story of the Coolidge fish.

Since then many newspapers have commented editorially on the fish. Secretary Jardine, head of the department of agriculture, speaking at St. Paul yesterday, heard so much about Minnesota fishing that he has stayed over to fish in our waters. He is determined to better President Coolidge's record of a three pound pickerel.

The St. Paul Pioneer Press commenting on the presidential trip, says:

"First fishing news out of White Pine camp, New York state, tells definitely of luck, but elaboration is required to classify the luck for the nation's fishermen. The correspondent says the President caught a three-pound pike. Translated into provincial terminology of Mid-West anglers, this means the President caught a pickerel. Along the border lakes the dispatch would be better understood if it referred to the jack fish. Only to the eastern angler who calls the introduced wall-eye a pickerel and the fish we know as a pickerel a pike, a clear picture of the President's captive is presented. By Minnesota standards the President's creel was almost empty; to the eastern angler, who rarely allows his 'pike' to escape through adolescence to three-pound maturity, it held a prize. White Pine camp needs the assistance of an ichthyologist, so when the President lands 'pike' (Esox lucius) the news may be given its rightful significance. Eastern terminology should not be allowed to dominate the nation's fishing news."

The Minneapolis Tribune headed its editorial, "Landing a Pike on the First Page." The argument and story follow:

"Calvin Coolidge, statesman, economist and President of the United States, hooked a three-pound pike in Lake Osgood, the Adirondacks.

"The President is a serious-minded gentleman with a large measure of restraint and poise, but it is with some trepidation we contemplate his landing of this pike. What will be the psychological effect on him of this piscatorial experience? We may only conjecture since he is a law unto himself, but we are mindful of what has happened to other serious-minded gentlemen of poise and restraint as a result of their landing a sizeable fish after a lapse of many years of non-fishing diversion."

"It is not more than a year or so since Mr. Coolidge was quoted as saying that fishing was a sport for boys. It seems, in the light of later information, that there was some qualification of his remark as to a particular time and place, but that qualification was overlooked by the publicists at the time, and the chronic anglers of the country rose as one man to challenge the purport of the remark. It seemed that the President was in the way of alienating from himself the piscatorial vote in 1928, and, believe us, it is quite some vote if we are to take the piscatorialists at their own valuation."

"Quite possible is it that the hooking of this three-pound pike has changed the complexion of things political in so far as those things have a bearing on the future career of Mr. Coolidge. We can imagine a widely diffused fishermen's maennerchor chanting the refrain:

"Oh, he's a jolly good fellow."

"Hitherto there has been some controversy as to whether or not Calvin Coolidge is a good politician in the more breezy and tactical meaning of the term, but may not all doubts now be dissolved in the presence of this sportive event in the Adirondacks? The Washington correspondents managed to build up a fine scheme of preparedness of the public mind for what has now come to pass. They had announced in advance that when the President reached his summer home he intended to go fishing. The President doubtless landed his pike on the first page of most of the daily papers of the land. It was a great day for the memory of Isaak Walton."

The Duluth News Tribune headed its editorial, "The President's Vacation" and commented on various angles and also brought out the fact, apparent to every Minnesotan, that if Coolidge wants fishing Minnesota is the place. The editorial in part reads:

"President Coolidge is reported to be sitting pretty at the summer capital at White Pine camp on Lake Osgood in the heart of the New York Adirondacks. It is a beautiful spot and the president is looking forward to a summer of rest and recreation, with brief intervals of necessary official business."

"The camp is a quiet, restful place, designed to provide for every comfort and convenience, and no doubt will fill the need of the chief executive for a tranquil, untroubled vacation period, after his strenuous season in Washington. About the only drawbacks so far noted at White Pine camp are that the temperature at mid-day is just a little too warm for comfort, and the swarms of blood-thirsty mosquitoes infest the nights, keeping everyone indoors or behind screens."

"We still believe, however, that the president should have accepted Duluth's invitation to make his summer home here, and that he would find it to his advantage in more ways than one, if he were now occupying the beautiful and spacious residence that was tendered him on London road."

"No place in the country has more to offer the summer visitor in the way of climate, scenic beauty and outdoor recreation than has this section of the state, and everything Minnesota has would be placed at his disposal."

"Although not a disciple of Isaak Walton, the president has intimated that he might do a 'little fishing' this summer. If he makes a few catches and is able to work up a little enthusiasm in telling about them, he will be admitted to a fraternity that numbers millions of male voters among its members."

"But if he intends to fish, which would undoubtedly add to his prestige, he should by all means have come to Minnesota where there is real fishing. Here even the amateur fisherman with a New England conscience and a high regard for veracity, would be able to return with stories that would measure up with the best of them."

"And if the president's innate modesty precludes any tall talk accompanied by a wide sweep of the arms, which might possibly be construed as boasting, he could take back a few mounted specimens of the finny tribe to place over his desk in Washington as a verifying exhibit."

JOY OF CATCHING A BIG FISH

THE joy of catching a big fish is of various kinds, divided into chapters. First comes the thrill of feeling the bite and then the pleasant task of exercising your ingenuity in landing the denizen of the deep. After he is landed comes the further thrill of showing the fish to neighbors and friends. Many a non-resident fisherman has pictures taken of the fish to substantiate his story and even has the fish mounted.

Well, C. A. Kramer of Sioux City, Iowa, did all of this and more. He caught a 12 pound pike, length 31½ inches, in Round lake, using as bait a June bug. He brought the fish to Brainerd and exhibited it at the Northern Home Furnishing company. He had pictures taken to send home, affidavits made as to weight and length and then gave it to a local taxidermist to mount so that future generations of the Kramers from Iowa, where the tall corn grows, can see with their own eyes the fish of Minnesota, where the big fish grow bigger every day.

HIGHWAY TRAFFIC RECORD SHATTERED

ALL highway traffic records on the highways were shattered during the recent week end holiday season. As commented on by St. Cloud papers, various travelers on the highways had a merry time counting vehicles along the route.

A total between St. Cloud and the twin cities along the highway would indicate that the average car going south last Saturday, July 3, would have met some 4,324 cars between the city limits of St. Cloud and those of Minneapolis.

There was about an average interval of 15 feet between cars in a steady stream that passed at a thirty mile gait from noon till long after dusk at Elk River and over half that number continued through to St. Cloud and points north. One fact was apparent and that is that the pavement is too narrow for that kind of an over-load.

NEW YORKERS, because of their subway strike, are fast becoming a race of pedestrians. The latter species was nearly extinct along with the horse, but industrial conditions are fast teaching the people of the greatest city of the world that legs are good for other things besides dancing. New York is suffering from the discomfort caused by unusual walking, but it will gain in health.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE caught a three-pound pickerel Wednesday and the news is sent all over the world by enterprising press associations. Out in this land of Ten Thousand Lakes we use three-pound pickerel for bait. To a man born in Vermont a three-pounder would seem to be some fish.—St. Cloud Daily Journal Press.

GENERAL HUMIDITY is in the saddle today and although the government thermometer doesn't show over 85, the atmosphere feels much hotter. Humidity is that state of the atmosphere which makes one feel sticky under the collar.

The city board of equalization composed of Mayor Halsted, City Clerk Lowe and President Crust will meet tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock to hear complaints. All those who have anything they want to air had better be on hand.

Miss Edith Isham left this noon for the twin cities for an extended visit.

Mrs. H. Breson returned from Minneapolis this morning where she has been visiting for some time.

Rev. Roderick J. Mooney, wife and child left this noon for Walker. They will go out on the Indian reservation.

Bee's Many Enemies

Bees are exposed to many hardships and dangers. Winds and storms must be faced. Spiders lie in wait for them and kill them. Once, a nature lover came upon a bee, beneath a leaf. It did not move, although it was laden with pollen which it must have taken from some flower. On closer examination the nature lover saw that a huge spider had the bee by the throat and was holding it till quite sure of its death.—Grit.

HOME, DAD AND THE BOY

By FRANK H. CHELEY

The Preoccupied Dad

THE world often calls him the successful man, and prints his history in Who's Who.

He gives his family everything they need but himself. In the wild rush of modern living he has abdicated his responsibility as a Dad.

He is a really large caliber man who has become wrapped up in his work until he almost forgets he is a father at all.

"Perhaps when profit is dead and brotherhood is an established fact, a less commercial generation will seize the greatest of all opportunities and fathers will concern themselves with their sons."

Not all the homeless boys in America live in the slums.

It is a great service to such men to help them discover that it is their privilege to be more than a Santa Claus to their own boys.

To whom does your boy go for advice?

"Yes, my Dad was a fine man, but I never knew him," said a certain boy in trouble.

Birds and Gases

Experiments have shown that birds are much less affected by poisonous gases than man. Sparrows and domestic pigeons resisted mustard gas and several other war gases, showing little sign of distress, in quantities that would have killed soldiers, and another weapon against such pests as the sparrows has proved worthless.

Chinese Rheumatic "Cure"

"The Moxa" is a cure for rheumatism. It originated with the Chinese. Small cones of a native cotton wool are placed on the skin and are then ignited. Those of the Japanese who cling to the older methods of relieving rheumatic ailments will resort to this searing of the skin.

Patterns of progress

An American home—its bathtub, breakfast foods, furnace—set down in the heart of Europe would be unmistakably an American home. An American man, the cut of his coat, the tie of his tie, the comb of his hair—walking the streets of Europe is in all his obvious tastes an American.

Advertisements stamp American homes and owners of homes with a kind of national pattern. They create desire for the same kind of things; make particular people know and want the most advanced of things. Homes—what to put in homes. People—how to dress, nourish, entertain the people. Offices—how to equip and operate offices. They set America right about radios and talcums—tell businessmen, housewives, government officials how to brush their teeth!

We cut the pattern of our personal lives and surroundings from advertisements. We keep modern only with their intimate help. We go forward with them, as we would stand still without them. We form our tastes and discriminate values by using their truths. Advertisements offer us patterns of progress that mean quick steps to the fore.

THE PRESIDENT'S FISH

THE BRAINERD DISPATCH was the first to note the diminutive size of President Coolidge's catch, a three pound pickerel and sent in a special story to the United Press which tagged along with the story of the Coolidge fish.

Since then many newspapers have commented editorially on the fish. Secretary Jardine, head of the department of agriculture, speaking at St. Paul yesterday, heard so much about Minnesota fishing that he has stayed over to fish in our waters. He is determined to better President Coolidge's record of a three pound pickerel.

The St. Paul Pioneer Press commenting on the presidential trip, says:

"First fishing news out of White Pine camp, New York state, tells definitely of luck, but elaboration is required to classify the luck for the nation's fishermen. The correspondent says the President caught a three-pound pike. Translated into provincial terminology of Mid-West anglers, this means the President caught a pickerel. Along the border lakes the dispatch would be better understood if it referred to the jack fish. Only to the eastern angler who calls the introduced wall-eye a pickerel and the fish we know as a pickerel a pike, a clear picture of the President's captive is presented. By Minnesota standards the President's creel was almost empty; to the eastern angler, who rarely allows his 'pike' to escape through adolescence to three-pound maturity, it held a prize. White Pine camp needs the assistance of an ichthyologist, so when the President lands 'pike' (Esox lucius) the news may be given its rightful significance. Eastern terminology should not be allowed to dominate the nation's fishing news."

The Minneapolis Tribune headed its editorial, "Landing a Pike on the First Page." The argument and story follow:

"Calvin Coolidge, statesman, economist and President of the United States, hooked a three-pound pike in Lake Osgood, the Adirondacks.

"The President is a serious-minded gentleman with a large measure of restraint and poise, but it is with some trepidation we contemplate his landing of this pike. What will be the psychologic effect on him of this piscatorial experience? We may only conjecture since he is a law unto himself, but we are mindful of what has happened to other serious-minded gentlemen of poise and restraint as a result of their landing a sizeable fish after a lapse of many years of non-fishing diversion.

"It is not more than a year or so since Mr. Coolidge was quoted as saying that fishing was a sport for boys. It seems, in the light of later information, that there was some qualification of his remark as to a particular time and place, but that qualification was overlooked by the publicists at the time, and the chronic anglers of the country rose as one man to challenge the purport of the remark. It seemed that the President was in the way of alienating from himself the piscatorial vote in 1928, and, believe us, it is quite some vote if we are to take the piscatorialists at their own valuation.

"Quite possible is it that the hooking of this three-pound pike has changed the complexion of things political in so far as those things have a bearing on the future career of Mr. Coolidge. We can imagine a widely diffused fishermen's maennerchor chanting the refrain:

"Hitherto there has been some controversy as to whether or not Calvin Coolidge is a good politician in the more breezy and tactical meaning of the term, but may not all doubts now be dissolved in the presence of this sportive event in the Adirondacks? The Washington correspondents managed to build up a fine scheme of preparedness of the public mind for what has now come to pass. They had announced in advance that when the President reached his summer home he intended to go fishing. The President doubtless landed his pike on the first page of most of the daily papers of the land. It was a great day for the memory of Isaak Walton."

The Duluth News Tribune headed its editorial, "The President's Vacation" and commented on various angles and also brought out the fact, apparent to every Minnesotan, that if Coolidge wants fishing Minnesota is the place. The editorial in part reads:

"President Coolidge is reported to be sitting pretty at the summer capital at White Pine camp on Lake Osgood in the heart of the New York Adirondacks. It is a beautiful spot and the president is looking forward to a summer of rest and recreation, with brief intervals of necessary official business.

"The camp is a quiet, restful place, designed to provide for every comfort and convenience, and no doubt will fill the need of the chief executive for a tranquil, unworried vacation period, after his strenuous season in Washington. About the only drawbacks so far noted at White Pine camp are that the temperature at mid-day is just a little too warm for comfort, and the swarms of blood-thirsty mosquitoes infest the nights, keeping everyone indoors or behind screens.

"We still believe, however, that the president should have accepted Duluth's invitation to make his summer home here, and that he would find it to his advantage in more ways than one, if he were now occupying the beautiful and spacious residence that was tendered him on London road.

"No place in the country has more to offer the summer visitor in the way of climate, scenic beauty and outdoor recreation than has this section of the state, and everything Minnesota has would be placed at his disposal.

"In these days of rapid transportation and comfort in travel, the distance from the nation's capital should not be considered a drawback. Modern facilities for communication have made all communities neighbors.

"Although not a disciple of Isaak Walton, the president has intimated that he might do a 'little fishing' this summer. If he makes a few catches and is able to work up a little enthusiasm in telling about them, he will be admitted to a fraternity that numbers millions of male voters among its members.

"But if he intends to fish, which would undoubtedly add to his prestige, he should by all means have come to Minnesota where there is real fishing. Here even the amateur fisherman with a New England conscience and a high regard for veracity, would be able to return with stories that would measure up with the best of them.

accompanied by a wide sweep of the arms, which might possibly be construed as boasting, he could take back a few mounted specimens of the finny tribe to place over his desk in Washington as a verifying exhibit."

JOY OF CATCHING A BIG FISH

THE joy of catching a big fish is of various kinds, divided into chapters. First comes the thrill of feeling the bite and then the pleasant task of exercising your ingenuity in landing the denizen of the deep. After he is landed comes the further thrill of showing the fish to neighbors and friends. Many a non-resident fisherman has pictures taken of the fish to substantiate his story and even has the fish mounted.

Well, C. A. Kramer of Sioux City, Iowa, did all of this and more. He caught a 12 pound pike, length 31½ inches, in Round lake, using as bait a June bug. He brought the fish to Brainerd and exhibited it at the Northern Home Furnishing company. He had pictures taken to send home, affidavits made as to weight and length and then gave it to a local taxidermist to mount so that future generations of the Kramers from Iowa, where the tall corn grows, can see with their own eyes the fish of Minnesota, where the big fish grow bigger every day.

HIGHWAY TRAFFIC RECORD SHATTERED

ALL highway traffic records on the highways were shattered during the recent week end holiday season. As commented on by St. Cloud papers, various travelers on the highways had a merry time counting vehicles along the route.

A total between St. Cloud and the twin cities along the highway would indicate that the average car going south last Saturday, July 3, would have met some 4,324 cars between the city limits of St. Cloud and those of Minneapolis.

There was about an average interval of 15 feet between cars in a steady stream that passed at a thirty mile gait from noon till long after dusk at Elk River and over half that number continued through to St. Cloud and points north. One fact was apparent and that is that the pavement is too narrow for that kind of an over-load.

NEW YORKERS, because of their subway strike, are fast becoming a race of pedestrians. The latter species was nearly extinct along with the horse, but industrial conditions are fast teaching the people of the greatest city of the world that legs are good for other things besides dancing. New York is suffering from the discomfort caused by unusual walking, but it will gain in health.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE caught a three-pound pickerel Wednesday and the news is sent all over the world by enterprising press associations. Out in this land of Ten Thousand Lakes we use three-pound pickerel for bait. To a man born in Vermont a three-pounder would seem to be some fish.—St. Cloud Daily Journal Press.

GENERAL HUMIDITY is in the saddle today and although the government thermometer doesn't show over 85, the atmosphere feels much hotter. Humidity is that state of the atmosphere which makes one feel sticky under the collar.

25 YEARS AGO

From the Daily Dispatch

July 10, 1901

Miss Daisy Middleton of Minneapolis arrived in the city this noon to visit for a time with her mother, Mrs. Sarah E. Middleton.

The Misses Alberta and Ione Bean left today for Hubert Lake to be the guests of Mrs. J. W. Sanborn and family for a short time.

The announcement from headquarters to the 26,000 members of the A. O. U. W. in Minnesota is that there is no assessment to pay for the month of July.

The city board of equalization composed of Mayor Halsted, City Clerk Lowe and President Crust will meet tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock to hear complaints. All those who have anything they want to air had better be on hand.

Miss Edith Isham left this noon for the twin cities for an extended visit. Mrs. H. Breson returned from Minneapolis this morning where she has been visiting for some time.

Rev. Roderick J. Mooney, wife and child left this noon for Walker. They will go out on the Indian reservation.

The members of the "You and I" club and their friends enjoyed a dancing party last evening in Walker's hall. There was a good attendance and the evening was a pleasant one.

although the weather was rather warm.

Bee's Many Enemies

Bees are exposed to many hardships and dangers. Winds and storms must be faced. Spiders lie in wait for them and kill them. Once, a nature lover came upon a bee, beneath a leaf. It did not move, although it was laden with pollen which it must have taken from some flower. On closer examination the nature lover saw that a huge spider had the bee by the throat and was holding it till quite sure of its death.—Grit.

John Smith, Sea Writer

What is believed to have been the first known book on seamanship and nautical practices was published in 1626 by Capt. John Smith, the historian of Virginia and hero in the now famous Pocahontas story. Many of the facts therein laid out are applicable and fundamental today.

A Thousand Years Hence

An English scientist says that in 1,000 years the world will be so densely populated that there will hardly be standing room. It would seem, however, that the English have enough to worry about already without figuring on conditions a thousand years hence.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

HOME, DAD AND THE BOY

By FRANK H. CHELEY

(C) F. H. Cheley, Denver, Colo.

The Preoccupied Dad

THE world often calls him the successful man, and prints his history in Who's Who.

He gives his family everything they need but himself. In the wild rush of modern living he has abdicated his responsibility as a Dad. He is a really large-calibered man who has become wrapped up in his work until he almost forgets he is a father at all.

"Perhaps when profit is dead and brotherhood is an established fact, a less commercial generation will seize the greatest of all opportunities and fathers will concern themselves with their sons."

Not all the homeless boys in America live in the slums.

It is a great service to such men to help them discover that it is their privilege to be more than a Santa Claus to their own boys.

To whom does your boy go for advice? "Yes, my Dad was a fine man, but I never knew him," said a certain boy in trouble.

Birds and Gases

Experiments have shown that birds are much less affected by poisonous gases than man. Sparrows and domestic pigeons resisted mustard gas and several other war gases, showing little sign of distress, in quantities that would have killed soldiers, and another weapon against such pests as the sparrows has proved worthless.

Chinese Rheumatic "Cure"

"The Moxa" is a cure for rheumatism. It originated with the Chinese. Small cones of a native cotton wool are placed on the skin and are then ignited. Those of the Japanese who cling to the older methods of relieving rheumatic ailments still resort to this searing of the skin.

By the REV. ROY L. SMITH, D. D.
Pastor Simpson M. E. Church, Minneapolis

WHO WERE THE BIG MEN?

Consciously or unconsciously every man is in a conflict with oblivion. We all want to be remembered after we have passed from the stage of human affairs. One of the supreme questions of life is what to do to be sure we will not be forgotten.

Is there any short cut to immortality?
Who was the richest man in the world on the day that Martin Luther nailed his ninety-five theses to the cathedral door? No one knows! Yet there were thousands of men who were struggling desperately to accumulate money with which to build monuments on which to carve their names in letters that would not fade. But they are all forgotten. We do not even know their names. But the little Wittenberg monk still lives.

Who was the greatest politician in the world when William Herschel was peering through his little homemade telescope and discovering new worlds? No one knows. At least his name is forgotten, but the musician who made astronomy his hobby has survived the ages and will be remembered as long as men undertake to chart the heavens.

Who lived in the biggest house in Amsterdam when Spinoza, the poor lens grinder was working at his bench and teaching a few fascinated pupils? No one knows. Yet some man in Spinoza's day walked the streets of the city and the people called him great because he lived in a big house. But the big man and the big house are both forgotten while the name of the little lens grinder will live as long as men ask the great questions of life and philosophy.

The only reason Herod is remembered is because he threw John, the Baptist, in prison. Pilate was rescued from oblivion because he delivered Jesus of Nazareth over to the mob to be crucified.

Galileo was a poor and humble investigator without money or friends at court. But he had an idea. Copernicus, Newton, Columbus, Watts, Fulton, Arkwright—all these were poor men who became great before they became rich.

Evidently immortality is not to be gained by bribes. It is won by brains, or secured by service.

Love and Letter Writing

(Copyright.)
NO MATTER how well he might train his private secretary, Jerry Dawe always had a good-sized pile of letters on his desk at his office that needed personal attention. So an hour or more of every day's time was devoted to letter writing. And as a writer of forceful and unusual business letters Jerry Dawe enjoyed quite a wide reputation. These business letters were a nuisance but they could be got through. Personal letters, however, in Jerry's opinion were a deadly plague.

Of course Jerry knew that to reply to purely social correspondence with a typewritten letter was decidedly bad manners. Still it seemed to Jerry that his mother and sister ought not to object to letters dictated to his stenographer.

Jerry's invitations were numerous. Moreover on birthdays and holidays Jerry's friends had a disconcerting way of sending him presents. And always Jerry would have to sit home in his apartment miserably writing notes of acknowledgment. Once it occurred to him that to persons who were not familiar with his handwriting his stenographer might write some of the formal social notes.

Once Jerry asked his partner how he managed with his personal and social correspondence.

"You mean letters to the folks at home, and answers to invitations and all that sort of thing? Why, bless your heart, I haven't thought of such matters for many a year. My wife attends to all that. And of course 'thank you' letters and answers to invitations—I suppose a man's wife always attends to such matters."

Presently Jerry was absorbed in business concerns, but later he found himself recalling what his partner had said on the matter.

Jerry had to admit that such thoughts were rather dangerous. They might so far dominate him that he would end by asking some girl to marry him. Probably—ninety-nine chances out of a hundred—thought the modest bachelor, the girl would reject him, but there was the chance. Besides, having proposed once he would probably be willing to propose again.

One evening snugly home in his bachelor apartment he surveyed six letters and notes, all needing personal replies. He felt sure that no one else in his acquaintance had relatives with such a taste and talent for writing letters. In a mood like this Jerry toyed with the idea of marrying. He went so far as to list over to himself the names of the young women of his acquaintance whom he might consider as possibilities. Six or seven occurred to him, yet so far as he knew not one of them cared a snap of her finger for him, and he cared little more than that for any one of them. Still there were the letters—he hated to answer them.

It was the next day that Jerry walked into the office of Patricia Collins, employment agent—walked in with his eyes wide open. At a glance he saw how very pretty was Patricia as she sat at her well-arranged desk, dictating to two stenographers at once and giving directions to an office boy without apparently being the least bit confused. Jerry would have telephoned only that he wanted to maintain perfect secrecy in the matter.

Patricia finished with her assistants and then gave her undivided attention to Jerry. He explained without any embarrassment his predicament and asked Patricia to put him in touch with some young woman with a good strong handwriting and a knowledge of the conventions who would attend to his correspondence.

"Of course," said Patricia, looking a little reprovingly at him, "of course I could probably find some young woman of that sort. Still, it seems a shame—she'd have to counterfeit your handwriting—and the relatives who like hearing from you wouldn't really be hearing from you at all. It's too bad you haven't a sister or some one who could write to your relatives and attend to your social correspondence. Then there wouldn't have to be any deception about it. Usually a man's wife does those things—" Patricia stopped short and looked a trifle embarrassed.

"I know," said Jerry, "and that's the trouble. I'm not married—never shall be married. And I detest writing letters—"

Two months thereafter a devoted aunt of Jerry received this letter written in a well-formed feminine hand that was unfamiliar to her.

"Dear Aunt Mary—" the letter ran. "Jerry has asked me to write this letter to you and I'll have to introduce myself to you to start with as Jerry's new wife. Jerry met me only a little while ago and after the shortest time we became engaged and then as I was quite alone in the world and almost twenty-eight we were married without delay. From what Jerry says, you and he have always been great friends—and I'm hoping for a share in that friendship. I was in business before I married Jerry and I asked Jerry if I couldn't answer his letters for him just to keep myself from being idle. So I'm going to tell you everything that Jerry has been doing—"

And so the letter progressed over eight pages of note paper full of the doings and thoughts of Jerry.

WORLD CALLING FOR WEALTH OF TROPICS

Reason for Development of Equatorial Africa.

The French ministry at a recent council decided to build a railroad into equatorial Africa. This action has been hastened by the French colonial control, which declares the Congo region in its present state is not only useless to France but a heavy burden and expense. If the country is to be worth anything it maintains, the interior must be connected with French ports on the east African coast and its products be sent out to the world markets.

It has long been a matter of speculation if the natural resources of equatorial Africa were worth development and the expense and labor required to export them, the New York Sun observes. The caravan trade across the Sahara to Mediterranean ports revealed a great supply of ivory and tropical products, and natives and travelers reported immense reservoirs of raw material. The explorations of Livingstone and Stanley, however, gave the world the first estimate of the actual value of the resources of equatorial Africa.

The breaking out of the World war caused temporary abandonment of many European plans for the opening up of central Africa. Some of these plans have been revived within the last year. The British have built a railway from the east coast to aid the export of cotton from the newly developed Uganda cotton fields. They have also built several links in the Cape to Cairo railroad in the central African lake region. On the western coast the Belgians have constructed roads of 200 or 300 miles in length from their Atlantic ports into the interior. One of these, the railway to Brazzaville on the Congo river, the French have been using.

The French found, however, that the Belgian traffic has grown to such an extent that they were no longer able to depend upon this small railway. Their plan is to build a road from the head of navigation on the Congo eastward, with branch lines tapping the principal sources of native supplies. This road will place the development of the Congo region practically for the first time on a commercial basis. It is a pioneer venture, but at the same time it is a natural outcome of conditions. With the present demand for tropical materials the world is not likely to let this greatest source of supply remain undeveloped.

Mental Stunts in Golf

When I was lecturing in the principal cities of England and Scotland more than twenty years ago, a man whom I met in Glasgow told me that he had taken my advice and concentrated on his worst habit, lifting the head in golf, and had kept it up for two or three weeks every day; not while he was playing, but when he was sitting in his office doing nothing. He had concentrated on the fact that looking up to see where the ball is going has no effect whatever on his flight, and that if it is right it will always fly right. This being so, he concentrated on the fact that the only thing necessary to do was to hit the ball. He was evidently more than pleased with the practical results of his concentration.—R. F. Foster in Everybody's Magazine.

Ten years meditation sitting in one posture has just been completed by a Chinese monk, formerly a steward on board a British steamship. His ten years was spent sitting in one position. The man felt the religious urge ten years ago and entered the Luan Buddhist monastery as a monk, where his penance, which is to sit in profound meditation with his legs crossed under him on a stool, has earned him the name of the "meditating monk of Luan." All day he sits on the stool meditating and at night he sleeps in his cell in the same position. He always welcomes foreign visitors very warmly and delights in chatting about former agonies.

WHO WERE THE BIG MEN?

Consciously or unconsciously every man is in a conflict with oblivion. We all want to be remembered after we have passed from the stage of human affairs. One of the supreme questions of life is what to do to be sure we will not be forgotten.

Is there any short cut to immortality?
Who was the richest man in the world on the day that Martin Luther nailed his ninety-five theses to the cathedral door? No one knows! Yet there were thousands of men who were struggling desperately to accumulate money with which to build monuments on which to carve their names in letters that would not fade. But they are all forgotten. We do not even know their names. But the little Wittenberg monk still lives.

Who was the greatest politician in the world when William Herschel was peering through his little homemade telescope and discovering new worlds? No one knows. At least his name is forgotten, but the musician who made astronomy his hobby has survived the ages and will be remembered as long as men undertake to chart the heavens.

Who lived in the biggest house in Amsterdam when Spinoza, the poor lens grinder was working at his bench and teaching a few fascinated pupils? No one knows. Yet some man in Spinoza's day walked the streets of the city and the people called him great because he lived in a big house. But the big man and the big house are both forgotten while the name of the little lens grinder will live as long as men ask the great questions of life and philosophy.

The only reason Herod is remembered is because he threw John, the Baptist, in prison. Pilate was rescued from oblivion because he delivered Jesus of Nazareth over to the mob to be crucified.

Galileo was a poor and humble investigator without money or friends at court. But he had an idea. Copernicus, Newton, Columbus, Watts, Fulton, Arkwright—all these were poor men who became great before they became rich.

Evidently immortality is not to be gained by bribes. It is won by brains, or secured by service.

Love and Letter Writing

(Copyright.)
NO MATTER how well he might train his private secretary, Jerry Dawe always had a good-sized pile of letters on his desk at his office that needed personal attention. So an hour or more of every day's time was devoted to letter writing. And as a writer of forceful and unusual business letters Jerry Dawe enjoyed quite a wide reputation. These business letters were a nuisance but they could be got through. Personal letters, however, in Jerry's opinion were a deadly plague.

Of course Jerry knew that to reply to purely social correspondence with a typewritten letter was decidedly bad manners. Still it seemed to Jerry that his mother and sister ought not to object to letters dictated to his stenographer.

Jerry's invitations were numerous.
Moreover on birthdays and holidays Jerry's friends had a disconcerting way of sending him presents. And always Jerry would have to sit home in his apartment miserably writing notes of acknowledgment. Once it occurred to him that to persons who were not familiar with his handwriting his stenographer might write some of the formal social notes.

Once Jerry asked his partner how he managed with his personal and social correspondence.

"You mean letters to the folks at home, and answers to invitations and all that sort of thing? Why, bless your heart, I haven't thought of such matters for many a year. My wife attends to all that. And of course
'thank you' letters and answers to invitations—I suppose a man's wife always attends to such matters."

Presently Jerry was absorbed in business concerns, but later he found himself recalling what his partner had said on the matter.

Jerry had to admit that such thoughts were rather dangerous. They might so far dominate him that he would end by asking some girl to marry him. Probably—ninety-nine chances out of a hundred—thought the modest bachelor, the girl would reject him, but there was the chance.
Besides, having proposed once he would probably be willing to propose again.

One evening snugly home in his bachelor apartment he surveyed six letters and notes, all needing personal replies. He felt sure that no one else in his acquaintance had relatives with such a taste and talent for writing letters. In a mood like this Jerry toyed with the idea of marrying. He went so far as to list over to himself the names of the young women of his acquaintance whom he might consider as possibilities. Six or seven occurred to him, yet so far as he knew not one of them cared a snap of her finger for him, and he cared little more than that for any one of them. Still there were the letters—he hated to answer them.

It was the next day that Jerry walked into the office of Patricia Collins, employment agent—walked in with his eyes wide open. At a glance he saw how very pretty was Patricia as she sat at her well-arranged desk, dictating to two stenographers at once and giving directions to an office boy without apparently being the least bit confused. Jerry would have telephoned only that he wanted to maintain perfect secrecy in the matter.

Patricia finished with her assistants and then gave her undivided attention to Jerry. He explained without any embarrassment his pre-dilemma and asked Patricia to put him in touch with some young woman with a good strong handwriting and a knowledge of the conventions who would attend to his correspondence.

"Of course," said Patricia, looking a little reprovingly at him, "of course I could probably find some young woman of that sort. Still, it seems a shame—she'd have to counterfeit your handwriting—and the relatives who like hearing from you wouldn't really be hearing from you at all. It's too bad you haven't a sister or some one who could write to your relatives and attend to your social correspondence.
Then there wouldn't have to be any deception about it. Usually a man's wife does those things—" Patricia stopped short and looked a trifle embarrassed.

"I know," said Jerry, "and that's the trouble. I'm not married—never shall be married. And I detest writing letters—"

Two months thereafter a devoted aunt of Jerry received this letter written in a well-formed feminine hand that was unfamiliar to her.

"Dear Aunt Mary—" the letter ran.
"Jerry has asked me to write this letter to you and I'll have to introduce myself to you to start with as Jerry's new wife. Jerry met me only a little while ago and after the shortest time we became engaged and then as I was quite alone in the world and almost twenty-eight we were married without delay. From what Jerry says, you and he have always been great friends—and I'm hoping for a share in that friendship. I was in business before I married Jerry and I asked Jerry if I couldn't answer his letters for him just to keep myself from being idle. So I'm going to tell you everything that Jerry has been doing—"

And so the letter progressed over eight pages of note paper full of the doings and thoughts of Jerry.

PETE LATZO SUCCESSFUL IN TITLE FIGHT

FOUL BLOW BY LEVINE ENDS BOUT, 4TH ROUND

CHAMPION SENT WRITHING TO
PUNCH

FEW AT RINGSIDE, HOWEVER,
BELIEVED BLOW WAS INTENTIONAL

By PAUL W. WHITE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, July 10.—Pete Latzo successfully defended his welterweight title for a second time when a blow by George Levine disqualified the Brooklyn challenger and ended the bout after 1 minute and 28 seconds of the fourth round had elapsed.

It was clearly a foul blow struck by Levine, but the 20,000 fans, who gathered at the Polo Grounds last night thought for a moment that a new champion would be crowned when the knockdown timer began counting over the recumbent form of Lazo. The champion had been sent writhing to the floor by the illegal punch.

However, after the count of four had been reached, Referee Purdy assisted Latzo to his corner and awarded the fight to the "Scranton miner."
Although Levine had been stung and harried by the champion's ferocious blows, there were few at the ringside who believed that the low punch was intentional. If anything, Levine had outboxed his opponent in the earlier rounds, although he did not pack the wallop that lay in Lazo's gloves.

Sid Terris, who was to have fought Phil McGraw, withdrew on plea of an injured hand. Ruby Goldstein, who was scheduled to meet Eddie Kid Wagner, advanced no reason, have that of his temperament, for his withdrawal. McGraw and Wagner were paired against each other and the former won the decision in 10 rounds.

Terris and Goldstein have been

WOMEN BREAK ATHLETIC RECORDS AT PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, July 10.—(UP)— With one world's record equalled and four American marks broken and another equalled in the preliminary events, the finals of the women's national track and field championship events today are expected to bring additional record smashing performances.

Lillian Copeland of the Pasadena Athletic and Country club, yesterday set new marks for the discus, javelin and shot put. Ellen Bush of Paterson, N. J., equalled the furlong record and the world's record for the quarter mile relay was beaten by the Toronto Ladies' Athletic club team.
The Pasadena club is expected to take the team championship, having qualified ten competitors. The Northwestern California club qualified eight and the Meadowbrook and Toronto
Ladies' club six each.

CAPTAIN FAWCETT DEFENDS THE RODEO

Breezy Point Lodge, Pequot, Minn., July 10.—Captain William H. Fawcett, sportsman, trapshooter and master of Breezy Point Lodge, has come to the defense of the Minneapolis American Legion drum and bugle corps staging a rodeo at Minneapolis.

He takes direct issue with Sara Fullerton who has declared the exhibition a brutal one. The British empire exposition at Wembley would have lacked novelty and color if it had not been for its American rodeo, said Captain Fawcett.

It takes strength, courage and skill to throw a steer and a bulldogging cowboy is man enough not to hurt the animal when he throws it.
Captain Fawcett is on his way today to Chicago where he will enter the Elks national trapshooting tournament to be held there at the time of the national convention of the order. The captain is an active member of Brainerd lodge of Elks.

ENGLISH ATHLETES MIXED TEAM DEFEATS AMERICANS

Stamford Bridge, England, July 10.
—(UP)—A team of Oxford and Cambridge athletes today defeated picked stars from Cornell and Princeton universities in a 12 event track and field meet.

The British team won seven events, while the Americans could capture but five. The invaders were unable to cope with their rivals in any of the longer races, although Hand Russell of Cornell captured the two two sprints.

A special cup, donated by the King of Spain, was presented to the Cambridge athletes.

RULING MADE IN BABY FISHING CASE

A four month old baby cannot fish unlawfully, but it can be aided by its adult protectors, the state attorney general's office ruled Friday in answer to a query from the State Game and Fish Commission.
The request for an opinion was made after a four month old baby was found with a fish line tied to its wrist in a boat with its parents.
Children under the age of seven years are incapable of committing a crime, the ruling stated further. The parents can be held in violation of the state fishing law, it stated.

BOBBY JONES, JOE TURNESA CLOSE TO BILL MEHLHORN

TODAY

SHOOTING BRILLIANT GOLF OVER
A HAZARDOUS AND TRICKY
COURSE

By HARRY W. SHARPE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Scioto Country Club, Columbus, O., July 10.—Bobby Jones, American amateur and British open champion, and Joe Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y., pro, gathered 35's, one below par in the first nine holes in the finals of the National Open Championship here today.

Shooting brilliant golf throughout and over a course made hazardous and tricky by drenching rains of last night, Jones and Turnesa bade fair to cut down the lead of Wild Bill Mehlhorn, Chicago pro, who is leading the field with 143 for the first 36 holes.

Al Espinosa also hit the turn one under par.

These three were the first to break even fours for the first nine, but the whole field was shooting better golf, wary of the traps and rough which played havoc with scores Friday.

The 62 survivors were playing 18 holes in the morning and 18 in the afternoon and with Mehlhorn, the leader, among the last to start, the issue of this year's championship was certain to be in doubt until far into the late afternoon.

For a moment the sensation of the tournament was young Turnesa, whose 145 for the first 36 holes had put him in second place.

When Joe started off with a birdie three and reeled off par figures for the next eight holes with a coolness of a veteran, the experts, who had marked him down as a dangerous contender, began to talk about Turn-esa as a likely open champion of 1926.

Scioto Country Club, Columbus, O., July 10.—Coming from behind with a rush, Bobby Jones of Atlanta, drew up within striking distance of the National Open golf title today.

With little Joe Turnesa, the New York Italian, showing the way to early starters with a total of 217 points for the 54 holes, Bobby drew up by means of a brilliant 71 for his morning round and was three strokes behind Turnesa with 220.

Bill Mehlhorn, the leader, was a late starter.

Another, to come rushing from behind was Walter Hagen who went out in 34, two under par.

Among the early finishers who still had a chance were Turnesa, Jones, Leo Diegel with 223, Willie Klein with 225, and Jack Forrester with 226.

A rainstorm swept the course and drenched the players and several thousand spectators shortly after noon, making playing conditions difficult in a different way from the first two days.

From even further behind, a position in which he had been written out of the contest, came MacDonald
Smith, with a 68.

The Californian turned in the round he had been planning upon when it was almost too late. His 226 gave him an outside chance.

Dan Williams of Westfield, N. J., who was in third place last night, took an 80 for a total of 226.

Hagen shot a 74, two over par, making his total 224, seven behind Turnesa.

Hagen took a six on the short 14th hole, the hole on which he found trouble beneath an automobile on the first day. Walter came back, however, with a birdie four at the long 18th and put himself within striking distance of the championship.

Willie Hunter then popped up among the list of likely winners with an excellent 69, three strokes under par. This put the Los Angeles golfer in third place for the moment with a total of 221, four behind Turnesa.

Scioto Country Club, Columbus, O., July 10.—The struggle for the National Open Golf Championship of 1926 had become one of the most uncertain contests in history as the contestants started out on their final rounds this afternoon.

With seven players closely bunched in the lead and any one of them capable of smashing par and capturing the title with a sensational round, the tremendous gallery at Scioto had thrills as seldom go with a national championship.

Leading the field was young Joe Turnesa of New York with 217.

Then came Wild Bill Mehlhorn of Chicago with 219, Bill having taken a 75 today. In third place was Bobby Jones with 220 for his 54 holes. Then came Willie Hunter with 221, thanks to a great 69 this morning, and Leo Diegel with 223.

Johnny Farrell shot a 69 and had 224, which was Walter Hagen's score for the first three rounds.

Any one of the seven had a chance, with the championship undoubtedly due to go to one of them.

Bill Mehlhorn's flop had not been entirely unexpected. Many figured he had a bad round in his system after having led the large field for two days.

Of the 62 players, who qualified for today's two final rounds, only Jones and Hagen, among the favorites in the betting before the play began, had a chance for the title.

The big surprise was the playing of Turnesa, the slender New York Italian, whose performances were most consistent of any competitor for the first three rounds.

Willie Hunter and Johnny Farrell had not been figured as serious contenders until they produced their 69's today. MacDonald Smith had the best round of the morning, 68 equaling the course record but the Californian was so far back even this did not put him within nine strokes of the leader.

Joe Turnesa was the first of the leaders to reach the turn on the final round.

The young Italian had a 37.
The first casualty of the final round was a 38 for Bobby Jones going out.

The Atlantan appeared tired. Apparently his golf in Scotland had taken a little something from his game.

Bobby had a four on the short 9th, his tee shot being well over the green and behind a bunker. His run up was past the pin, too far for even a Jones' putt. This put Jones four strokes behind Turnesa and it appeared doubtful at this time if he can make up that handicap in the last nine holes.

Along came Leo Diegel, who six strokes behind Turnesa, with a 35, one under par for the first nine of his last round. Right there Leo picked up two strokes on the Italian, hardly enough to catch Joe unless the latter cracks.

Joe Turnesa with the championship in his grasp, collapsed on the last round. He was out in 37, needing two birdies to accomplish this,
but then his short game failed him, his puts would not get down and he lost his chance to be champion of 1926 by going well over par on the way home. He was too strong with his chip shots on the 16th and 17th and took a 77 for the round. This made Turnesa a total of 294 and Jones overtook him temporarily.

Bobby Jones passed Joe Turnesa and took the lead in the National open championship late this afternoon.

The Atlantan had a total of 293, one stroke better than the New Yorker. Bobby had a beautiful birdie, almost an eagle, on the home hole while gave him 73 and put him ahead of Turnesa.

BASEBALL NOTES

Arthur Decatur, former National leaguer, has been pitching good ball for Newark.

Excepting the Riffs, most outfits would prefer to keep on playing on the home grounds.

Oblivion is where the "Second Ty Cobbs" go four or five days after they have been heralded.

Pitcher Timothy McNamara, with Toledo, is the lad recently turned over to the Hens by the New York Giants.

That company of armed citizens is a posse, tracking down the expert who had the St. Louis Browns finishing one-two in 1926.

In order to get anywhere in his chosen racket, a minor league catcher must be able to catch the eye of a major league scout.

Much of the rhythm has gone out of double-play combinations. Once it was Tinker to Evers to Chance. Now it's Gazzella to Lazzeri to Gehrig.

Bill Skiff, a catcher, has been purchased by the New York Yankees from the Milwaukee club of the American association in a straight cash transaction.

Heinie Groh, third baseman formerly with the New York Giants, has accepted terms to play with the Toledo club of the American association.

In the absence of a more likely theory it is supposed the radio favorite, "Show Me the Way to Go Home," was conceived by a base runner marooned on third.

Charles (Babe) Adams of the Pirates, was forty-four years old on May 18. And Babe is still able to throw 'em pretty fast and curve with the best of them. Of his long baseball career, virtually 18 years have been spent with the Pirates.

A peculiar incident occurred in a recent game at Columbus, when Outfielder Mike Menosky of the Senators went through a whole game without a time at bat, although he approached the plate four times. He made one sacrifice and was walked on three occasions.

Milwaukee sent Pitcher Orrid Mc-Cracken to the Springfield club of the Three-I league. McCracken is a hard-working youngster, who needs just a little more tuning up before he is ready to win consistently in Class AA.
The Brewers also gave Pitcher Specs
Burke his release, this being outright.

The publishers of the Fans' Baseball League Magazine, a monthly printed in Memphis, Tenn., and devoted to baseball, have hung up a trophy for the most valuable player in the Southern league this year. All baseball writers in the league have been asked to join in making the selection at the end of the season.

PETE LATZO SUCCESSFUL IN TITLE FIGHT

FOUL BLOW BY LEVINE ENDS BOUT, 4TH ROUND

CHAMPION SENT WRITHING TO
PUNCH

FEW AT RINGSIDE, HOWEVER,
INTENTIONAL

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, July 10.—Pete Latzo successfully defended his welter-weight title for a second time when a blow by George Levine disqualified the Brooklyn challenger and ended the bout after 1 minute and 28 seconds of the fourth round had elapsed.

It was clearly a foul blow struck by Levine, but the 20,000 fans, who gathered at the Polo Grounds last night thought for a moment that a new champion would be crowned when the knockdown timer began counting over the recumbent form of Latzo. The champion had been sent writhing to the floor by the illegal punch.

However, after the count of four had been reached, Referee Purdy assisted Latzo to his corner and awarded the fight to the "Scranton miner."

Although Levine had been stung and harried by the champion's ferocious blows, there were few at the ringside who believed that the low punch was intentional. If anything, Levine had outboxed his opponent in the earlier rounds, although he did not pack the wallop that lay in Latzo's gloves.

Sid Terris, who was to have fought Phil McGraw, withdrew on plea of an injured hand. Ruby Goldstein, who was scheduled to meet Eddie Kid Wagner, advanced no reason, have that of his temperament, for his withdrawal. McGraw and Wagner were paired against each other and the former won the decision in 10 rounds.

Terris and Goldstein have been suspended indefinitely.

WOMEN BREAK ATHLETIC RECORDS AT PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, July 10.—(UP)—With one world's record equalled and four American marks broken and another equalled in the preliminary events, the finals of the women's national track and field championship events today are expected to bring additional record smashing performances.

Lillian Copeland of the Pasadena Athletic and Country club, yesterday set new marks for the discus, javelin and shot put. Ellen Bush of Paterson, N. J., equalled the furlong record and the world's record for the quarter mile relay was beaten by the Toronto Ladies' Athletic club team. ## CAPTAIN FAWCETT DEFENDS THE RODEO Breezy Point Lodge, Pequot, Minn., July 10.—Captain William H. Fawcett, sportsman, trapshooter and master of Breezy Point Lodge, has come to the defense of the Minneapolis American Legion drum and bugle corps staging a rodeo at Minneapolis.

He takes direct issue with Sam Fullerton who has declared the exhibition a brutal one. The British empire exposition at Wembley would have lacked novelty and color if it had not been for its American rodeo, said Captain Fawcett.

It takes strength, courage and skill to throw a steer and a bulldogging cowboy is man enough not to hurt the animal when he throws it. Captain Fawcett is on his way today to Chicago where he will enter the Elks national trapshooting tournament to be held there at the time of the national convention of the order. The captain is an active member of Brainerd lodge of Elks.

ENGLISH ATHLETES MIXED TEAM DEFEATS AMERICANS

The British team won seven events, while the Americans could capture but five. The invaders were unable to cope with their rivals in any of the longer races, although Hand Russell of Cornell captured the two two sprints.

A special cup, donated by the King of Spain, was presented to the Cambridge athletes.

RULING MADE IN BABY FISHING CASE

A four month old baby cannot fish unlawfully, but it can be aided by its adult protectors, the state attorney general's office ruled Friday in answer to a query from the State Game and Fish Commission. The request for an opinion was made after a four month old baby was found with a fish line tied to its wrist in a boat with its parents. Children under the age of seven years are incapable of committing a crime, the ruling stated further. The parents can be held in violation of the state fishing law, it stated.

TODAY

SHOOTING BRILLIANT GOLF OVER
COURSE

By HARRY W. SHARPE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Scioto Country Club, Columbus, O., July 10.—Bobby Jones, American amateur and British open champion, and Joe Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y., pro, gathered 35's, one below par in the first nine holes in the finals of the National Open Championship here today.

Shooting brilliant golf throughout and over a course made hazardous and tricky by drenching rains of last night, Jones and Turnesa bade fair to cut down the lead of Wild Bill Mehlhorn, Chicago pro, who is leading the field with 143 for the first 36 holes.

Al Espinosa also hit the turn one under par. These three were the first to break even fours for the first nine, but the whole field was shooting better golf, wary of the traps and rough which played havoc with scores Friday.

The 62 survivors were playing 18 holes in the morning and 18 in the afternoon and with Mehlhorn, the leader, among the last to start, the issue of this year's championship was certain to be in doubt until far into the late afternoon.

For a moment the sensation of the tournament was young Turnesa, whose 145 for the first 36 holes had put him in second place.

When Joe started off with a birdie three and reeled off par figures for the next eight holes with a coolness of a veteran, the experts, who had marked him down as a dangerous contender, began to talk about Turnesa as a likely open champion of 1926.

Scioto Country Club, Columbus, O., July 10.—Coming from behind with a rush, Bobby Jones of Atlanta, drew up within striking distance of the National Open golf title today.

With little Joe Turnesa, the New York Italian, showing the way to early starters with a total of 217 points for the 54 holes, Bobby drew up by means of a brilliant 71 for his morning round and was three strokes behind Turnesa with 220.

Bill Mehlhorn, the leader, was a late starter. Another, to come rushing from behind was Walter Hagen who went out in 34, two under par.

Among the early finishers who still had a chance were Turnesa, Jones, Leo Diegel with 223, Willie Klein with 225, and Jack Forrester with 226.

A rainstorm swept the course and drenched the players and several thousand spectators shortly after noon, making playing conditions difficult in a different way from the first two days.

From even further behind, a position in which he had been written out of the contest, came MacDonald Smith, with a 68.

The Californian turned in the round he had been planning upon when it was almost too late. His 226 gave him an outside chance.

Dan Williams of Westfield, N. J., who was in third place last night, took an 80 for a total of 226.

Hagen shot a 74, two over par, making his total 224, seven behind Turnesa.

Hagen took a six on the short 14th hole, the hole on which he found trouble beneath an automobile on the first day. Walter came back, however, with a birdie four at the long 18th and put himself within striking distance of the championship.

Willie Hunter then popped up among the list of likely winners with an excellent 69, three strokes under par. This put the Los Angeles golfer in third place for the moment with a total of 221, four behind Turnesa.

Scioto Country Club, Columbus, O., July 10.—The struggle for the National Open Golf Championship of 1926 had become one of the most uncertain contests in history as the contestants started out on their final rounds this afternoon.

With seven players closely bunched in the lead and any one of them capable of smashing par and capturing the title with a sensational round, the tremendous gallery at Scioto had thrills such as seldom go with a national championship.

Leading the field was young Joe Turnesa of New York with 217. Then came Wild Bill Mehlhorn of Chicago with 219, Bill having taken a 75 today. In third place was Bobby Jones with 220 for his 54 holes. Then came Willie Hunter with 221, thanks to a great 69 this morning, and Leo Diegel with 223.

Johnny Farrell shot a 69 and had 224, which was Walter Hagen's score for the first three rounds.

Any one of the seven had a chance, with the championship undoubtedly due to go to one of them.

Bill Mehlhorn's flop had not been entirely unexpected. Many figured he had a bad round in his system after having led the large field for two days.

Of the 62 players, who qualified for today's two final rounds, only Jones and Hagen, among the favorites in the betting before the play began, had a chance for the title.

The big surprise was the playing of Turnesa, the slender New York Italian, whose performances were most consistent of any competitor for the first three rounds.

Willie Hunter and Johnny Farrell had not been figured as serious contenders until they produced their 69's today. MacDonald Smith had the best round of the morning, 68 equalling the course record but the Californian was so far back even this did not put him within nine strokes of the leader.

Joe Turnesa was the first of the leaders to reach the turn on the final round.

The young Italian had a 37. The first casualty of the final round was a 38 for Bobby Jones going out.

The Atlantan appeared tired. Apparently his golf in Scotland had taken a little something from his game.

Bobby had a four on the short 9th, his tee shot being well over the green and behind a bunker. His run up was past the pin, too far for even a Jones' putt. This put Jones four strokes behind Turnesa and it appeared doubtful at this time if he can make up that handicap in the last nine holes.

Along came Leo Diegel, who six strokes behind Turnesa, with a 35, one under par for the first nine of his last round. Right there Leo picked up two strokes on the Italian, hardly enough to catch Joe unless the latter cracks.

Joe Turnesa with the championship in his grasp, collapsed on the last round. He was out in 37, needing two birdies to accomplish this, but then his short game failed him, his puts would not get down and he lost his chance to be champion of 1926 by going well over par on the way home. He was too strong with his chip shots on the 16th and 17th and took a 77 for the round. This made Turnesa a total of 294 and Jones overtook him temporarily.

Bobby Jones passed Joe Turnesa and took the lead in the National open championship late this afternoon.

The Atlantan had a total of 293, one stroke better than the New Yorker. Bobby had a beautiful birdie, almost an eagle, on the home hole while gave him 73 and put him ahead of Turnesa.

Watching the Scoreboard

Yesterday's Hero—Jim Poole, whose homer in the 10th, his third hit of the day, gave the Athletics a 4 to 3 decision over Chicago.

Hornshy returned to the Cardinal lineup and the Braves were beaten 2 to 1.

Winn Ballou pitched for the Browns against his former team mates and Washington lost a 4 to 3 pitchers' battle.

The Pirates staged a six run rally in the sixth and overcame the Phillies 9 to 6.

The Cubs piled up an early lead and were never headed, downing the Robins 7 to 3.

The Giants handed the Reds a serious setback, winning both games of a doubleheader 7 to 4 and 4 to 1.

Babe Ruth's 27th homer helped the Yankees in their 8 to 2 walkaway from Cleveland.

The Tigers broke their six game losing streak behind the shut out hurling of Collins and beat the Red Sox 9 to 0.

Dawson, who had not lost a game this season, was pounded by the Senators and the Colonels lost 15 to 8.

Dunford had the Saints at his mercy and the Brewers won 3 to 0.

The Indians took the last game of the series from Toledo, 5 to 3, in 10 innings.

Rain at Minneapolis postponed the Millers and Blues game.

Excepting the Riffs, most outfits would prefer to keep on playing on the home grounds.

Oblivion is where the "Second Ty Cobbs" go four or five days after they have been heralded.

Pitcher Timothy McNamara, with Toledo, is the lad recently turned over to the Hens by the New York Giants.

That company of armed citizens is a posse, tracking down the expert who had the St. Louis Browns finishing one-two in 1926.

In order to get anywhere in his chosen racket, a minor league catcher must be able to catch the eye of a major league scout.

Much of the rhythm has gone out of double-play combinations. Once it was Tinker to Evers to Chance. Now it's Gassella to Lazzeri to Gehrig.

Bill Skiff, a catcher, has been purchased by the New York Yankees from the Milwaukee club of the American association in a straight cash transaction.

Heinie Groh, third baseman formerly with the New York Giants, has accepted terms to play with the Toledo club of the American association.

In the absence of a more likely theory it is supposed the radio favorite, "Show Me the Way to Go Home," was conceived by a base runner marooned on third.

Charles (Babe) Adams of the Pirates, was forty-four years old on May 18. And Babe is still able to throw 'em pretty fast and curve with the best of them. Of his long baseball career, virtually 18 years have been spent with the Pirates.

A peculiar incident occurred in a recent game at Columbus, when Outfielder Mike Menosky of the Senators went through a whole game without a time at bat, although he approached the plate four times. He made one sacrifice and was walked on three occasions.

Milwaukee sent Pitcher Orvid McCracken to the Springfield club of the Three-I league. McCracken is a hard-working youngster, who needs just a little more tuning up before he is ready to win consistently in Class AA. The Brewers also gave Pitcher Specs Burke his release, this being outright.

The publishers of the Fans' Baseball League Magazine, a monthly printed in Memphis, Tenn., and devoted to baseball, have hung up a trophy for the most valuable player in the Southern league this year. All baseball writers in the league have been asked to join in making the selection at the end of the season.

FASHIONS

By HEDDA HOYT

New York, July 10.—(UP)—Bohold the sweater is reinstated in summer fashions! Both slip-on and front-opened types are being worn at the smart resorts in France and America. Perhaps the chilly spring weather is responsible for the sweater's return although the vogue for the jumper blouse might also have acted as an aid.

Slip-ons with V-shaped necks and with narrow belts worn low over the hips are those in greatest favor. The belt is worn about four inches above the bottom of the sweater. Beige and blond shades are those most fashionable for sweaters this season. Of course, one sees a smattering of red, blue and mauve shades wherever smart women gather but the really chic sweater keeps to beige tones.

Skirts of beige tweed or of mixed tweeds are generally worn with the beige sweater. The belt and the double hat ribbon may be of contrasting color as for instance, when the sweater is a blond beige shade, the skirt is beige tweed, the hosiery is tan nude, the shoes are tan and the belt and hat band are scarlet. Often two hat bands are used this year, one matching the hat and the other contrasting.

Hats accompanying sweaters are usually little felts with down-turned brims. Skirts are generally pleated and this season the pleats are from one inch to one and one-half inch wide. Very few finely pleated skirts are noticed on smart women. In some cases the back of the skirt is left plain, in others the pleating is placed at one side only and again it may be used only in front. A few plain skirts are worn.

Wool jersey jumpers are also being worn by fashionable sportswomen. Horizontal stripings are often used, the stripes being of contrasting color and varying in width being narrower at the top of the sweater than at the hips. Box jackets of brown or navy blue flannel with the double-breasted fronts and brass buttons are among the newer types of sports jackets. As a rule they are worn with pleated skirts. All sorts of fancy and designs may be modern-year's sport attire, weaves are plain or fancy and designs may be modernistic—if one wishes.

About 1900 B. C. the Semite people adopted Egyptian symbols. Cadmus, of Egyptian descent, introduced into Greece from Phoenicia an alphabet of 16 letters. MENT

HEAVY DRILLING MACHINERY
FROM OKLAHOMA ARRIVES
IN TOWN

Lake Lillian, Minn., July 10.—(UP)—An incipient oil boom today has gripped Lake Lillian and the surrounding countryside in its frenzies.

As a result this village, which has an official population of only 30 persons, is witnessing the enactment of scenes that are commonplace in Texas and Oklahoma, but new and strange in Minnesota, which imports its "liquid gold."

The story began unwinding several months ago when holes scratched in the ground were declared to have yielded oil deposits. These were the famed "post hole" wells. The gasoline that filled the depressions was asserted to require no refining before use in automobiles.

Ever since then a vision of a "strike" has danced in the minds of property holders and the dreams have attained a furious tempo with the arrival of drilling machinery from the Oklahoma fields.

The equipment is being unloaded and hauled to a point south of the village where drilling operations will begin next week.

University and other experts are on the ground and the news has attracted hundreds of persons who are flocking into the village for miles around to see with their own eyes that the machinery has arrived.

The buzzing headquarters of the excited natives is Axel Lundquist's soda fountain, where is visible the only "gusher" that has been discovered to date. "Leaseholders," "spudding," "gushers" and other words of oil drilling terminology mingle with the fizzing of the soda fountain. With one hand Axel manipulates an ice cream spoon, with the other he gestures as he answers questions.

But Axel is entitled to consideration for he and Lars Erickson share the honor of having sunk the "post hole" wells. Erickson's store is a second center of interest, because around it are dotted the holes that yield the gasoline.

Many hundreds of acres of land around Lake Lillian are under lease and the lessees are only awaiting the results of the test drill before starting activities.

RAIN NEEDED FOR MINNESOTA CROPS, SAYS KIRK

CORN, FLAX, POTATOES ARE RE-PORTED AS MAKING GOOD PROGRESS

St. Paul, July 10.—(UP)—Except in the southeastern part of the state, rain is needed for Minnesota crops, Paul H. Kirk, Minnesota agricultural statistician, reported in his weekly crop report issued today.

"General weather conditions for all crops are reported as satisfactory only in the southeastern part of the state and one or two other small areas where there has been sufficient rain," the report said. "The reports indicate that rain is needed.

"Corn, flax and potatoes are reported as making good progress in most sections of the state. Early planted corn is knee high, but the whole crop, including fodder corn, is very uneven in size.

"Flax, although very uneven, is still reported in fairly good condition. "Pastures, hay and forage crops need rain."

James Kirkwood and Mary Astor in "The Wise Guy"

Eminent Screen Star Dons Frook for Role in "The Wise Guy"

In this picture, which has just been released, Kirkwood appears as a traveling preacher. Although he preaches the gospel of love and goodwill, he is really a crook. While delivering a sermon his confederates go through the congregation and strip their pockets.

In the end, however, Kirkwood, who plays the title role in the picture, reforms and really comes to believe in the doctrines that he so eloquently preaches.

Water for Ablutions

Little Used in Tibet

There are various ways of carrying children—in carriages, in the arms, on the hip or shoulder, in a blanket or leather sack, or pickaback.

The Tibetan woman is obliged to resort to the method last named, as she has no perambulators, or "go" carts, at her disposal. Why the task cannot be assigned to "father," the stronger and less industrious of the two, is unexplainable. But "baby," apparently, resigns himself to the situation, and, incidentally, enjoys his joy rides!

The first event in "baby's" life is his first (and last) bath! This is attended with due ceremonial. Well may it be, for it is a red-letter day in his existence, as he is only oiled thereafter!

The reason is explained by the fact that Tibetans of the lower classes never wash during the cold season, and very sparingly at other times, because it is alleged that the skin of the face cracks and ulcerates from the cold. If water is applied to it! The people of towns, who do not go much outside their houses, wash occasionally.

But the prejudice is strong against ablutions of the person, and it is equally extended to clothing, which, accordingly, is worn in a filthy and greasy state. Consequently, soap is highly prized, and little used in Tibet! Oil, on the other hand, is in much requisition as a preventive against cold.

It is not surprising, in the circumstances, that infant mortality in Tibet runs high, and that the babies that survive are so vigorous that they can endure filth and exposure without inconvenience, and, indeed, bear with impunity much rough usage.

Geophysical Facts

The earth is largely just the same as meteorites, our only importations from outer space. In experiments at the geophysical laboratory of the Carnegie Institution of Washington that simulate the conditions of extremely high temperature and pressure of the earth's interior, Dr. Leason H. Adams and Dr. Ralph E. Gibson have found that rocks have much more elasticity than was formerly supposed.

In a report to the National Academy of Sciences Doctor Adams said that they had found that the least siliceous of the silicate rocks, known in geological parlance as Dunite, when subjected to very high pressures was three-fourths as rigid as steel. The calculations of the two experimenters have been found to tally with seismological data which definitely establishes that the main part of the earth consists of peridotite rock or the stuff that meteorites are made of.

Wind Withers Entire Crop

The Chinese is an ever-welcome wind, but there is another hot wind that is decidedly the reverse. Farmers in the West and Southwest have seen their crops withered in a few hours by the coming of this visitor, says an American Magazine writer. Several years ago this hot wind struck the West at about 10:30 a. m., and in less than three hours the temperature had mounted to almost 120 degrees. In Kansas two men died while trying to go from Iola to Humboldt, a distance of eight miles. Three others were out with their teams at Humboldt. The horses died and the men almost succumbed.

Scarcely a chicken was left alive in that section. Hogs and cattle dropped in their tracks, suffocated by the rush of hot air.

INCIPIENT OIL BOOM AT LAKE LILLIAN

TOWN AND COUNTRYSIDE ARE WILD WITH EXCITE-MENT

FROM OKLAHOMA ARRIVES
IN TOWN

Lake Lillian, Minn., July 10. — (UP)—An incipient oil boom today has gripped Lake Lillian and the surrounding countryside in its frenzies.

As a result this village, which has an official population of only 30 persons, is witnessing the enactment of scenes that are commonplace in Texas and Oklahoma, but new and strange in Minnesota, which imports its "liquid gold."

The story began unwinding several months ago when holes scratched in the ground were declared to have yielded oil deposits. These were the famed "post hole" wells. The gasoline that filled the depressions was asserted to require no refining before use in automobiles.

Ever since then a vision of a "strike" has danced in the minds of property holders and the dreams have attained a furious tempo with the arrival of drilling machinery from the Oklahoma fields.

The equipment is being unloaded and hauled to a point south of the village where drilling operations will begin next week.

University and other experts are on the ground and the news has attracted hundreds of persons who are flocking into the village for miles around to see with their own eyes that the machinery has arrived.

The buzzing headquarters of the excited natives is Axel Lundquist's soda fountain, where is visible the only "gusher" that has been discovered to date. "Leaseholds," "spudding," "gushers" and other words of oil drilling terminology mingle with the fizzing of the soda fountain. With one hand Axel manipulates an ice cream spoon, with the other he gestures as he answers questions.

But Axel is entitled to consideration for he and Lars Erickson share the honor of having sunk the "post hole" wells. Erickson's store is a second center of interest, because around it are dotted the holes that yield the gasoline.

Many hundreds of acres of land around Lake Lillian are under lease and the lessees are only awaiting the results of the test drill before starting activities.

"But, Bobby," protested his mother, "this is only Monday. Surely they are not going to keep his body that long?"

"Of course not," Bobby retorted indignantly. "Why, they aren't even going to hang him till Friday."

RAIN NEEDED FOR MINNESOTA CROPS, SAYS KIRK

PROGRESS

St. Paul, July 10.—(UP)—Except in the southeastern part of the state, rain is needed for Minnesota crops, Paul H. Kirk, Minnesota agricultural statistician, reported in his weekly crop report issued today.

"General weather conditions for all crops are reported as satisfactory only in the southeastern part of the state and one or two other small areas where there has been sufficient rain," the report said. "The reports indicate that rain is needed."

"Small grains range from blossoming to early dough stage in the southern and central portions of the state and just heading farther north. Rye is beginning to turn and ranges from good to very poor."

"Flax, although very uneven, is still reported in fairly good condition."

"Pastures, hay and forage crops need rain."

A DECIDED BLOND

He—I find Ethel charming—a decided blond.
She—Oh, did she decide to be a blond?

Garden Verse

Each year he'll plant some carrots, but, just why I do not know.
He never eats the things; must be he likes to watch 'em grow.

Does His Utmost

"I never took a motor car trip with Jones. Is he a handy chap around a car?"

"Well, yes; if there's a tire to be changed, Jones is always ready to hold the valve cap."

Had Head Start

Reggie—I'm thinking of going into the hollow ware business, Miss Sharpe.

Miss S.—You should have a good head for such work.

A Risky Pastime

He—I'm going out for a little walk. She—Have you a card in your pocket with your telephone number and address on, so the hospital or morgue will know whom to notify?

Should Ask for It

Boss—Did you show that customer any consideration?

New Clerk—No, sir, but showed her everything else we have.

A Durable Bird

Woman—This is a very small chicken—
Grocer—Yes, ma'am, but it will take you a long time to eat it.

THE NARROW WAY

"He seems to be keeping to the narrow way very well of late."
"Has to—straitened circumstances, you know."

In the Scrap With Error

Though with the poet we agree, Truth, crushed to earth, will rise again.

We note sometimes 'tis not before The referee has counted ten.

Secretive

"Can your fiancée keep a secret?"
"I should think she can. We were engaged two of three weeks before I knew a thing about it."

And the Penalty

She—The Misses Blank usually sing duets, do they not?
He—Yes; they divide the responsibility.

James Kirkwood and Mary Astor in "The Wise Guy"

Eminent Screen Star Dons Frock for Role in "The Wise Guy"

In this picture, which has just been released, Kirkwood appears as a traveling preacher. Although he preaches the gospel of love and goodwill, he is really a crook. While delivering a sermon his confederates go through the congregation and strip their pockets.

In the end, however, Kirkwood, who plays the title role in the picture, reforms and really comes to believe in the doctrines that he so eloquently preaches.

Water for Ablutions

Little Used in Tibet!

There are various ways of carrying children—in carriages, in the arms, on the hip or shoulder, in a blanket or leather sack, or pickaback.

The Tibetan woman is obliged to resort to the method last named, as she has no perambulators, or "go" carts, at her disposal. Why the task cannot be assigned to "father," the stronger and less industrious of the two, is unintelligible. But "baby," apparently, resigns himself to the situation, and, incidentally, enjoys his joy rides!

The first event in "baby's" life is his first (and last) bath! This is attended with due ceremonial. Well may it be, for it is a red-letter day in his existence, as he is only oiled thereafter!

The reason is explained by the fact that Tibetans of the lower classes never wash during the cold season, and very sparingly at other times, because it is alleged that the skin of the face cracks and ulcerates from the cold. If water is applied to it! The people of towns, who do not go much outside their houses, wash occasionally.

But the prejudice is strong against ablutions of the person, and it is equally extended to clothing, which, accordingly, is worn in a filthy and greasy state. Consequently, soap is higher priced, and little used in Tibet! Oil, on the other hand, is in much requisition as a preventive against cold.

It is not surprising, in the circumstances, that infant mortality in Tibet runs high, and that the babies that survive are so vigorous that they can endure filth and exposure without inconvenience, and, indeed, bear with impunity much rough usage.

Geophysical Facts

The earth is largely just the same as meteorites, our only importations from outer space. In experiments at the Carnegie Institution of Washington that simulate the conditions of extremely high temperature and pressure of the earth's interior, Dr. Leason H. Adams and Dr. Ralph E. Gibson have found that rocks have much more elasticity than was formerly supposed.

In a report to the National Academy of Sciences Doctor Adams said that they had found that the least siliceous of the silicate rocks, known in geological parlance as Dunite, when subjected to very high pressures was three-fourths as rigid as steel. The calculations of the two experimenters have been found to tally with seismological data which definitely establishes that the main part of the earth consists of peridotite rock or the stuff that meteorites are made of.

Big Engineering Contracts

The sum involved in engineering construction contracts let in the United States since the first of the year is approaching the billion mark and continues to show a gain over last year. The money value of contracts let, including all classes of construction, from January 1 to date is $963,175,000, as against a total of $849,442,000 in the corresponding period a year ago. Of the sum involved so far this year $842,874,000 went into private operations.

Suit Lasted Well

Wearing a suit of clothes made 53 years ago, Rev. D. G. Delano, old-time saddle-bag circuit rider, still actively engaged in missionary work, celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday by preaching at Castlerock, Wash. The clothes, tailored by a woman, have never ripped, and retain all buttons. The suit appeared not so old-fashioned as to style and cut as might be imagined. The trousers are very similar to the present mode.

Weather Vane Long in Use

An old weather vane brought to the Dutch settlement at Albany, N. Y., in 1659 is still in active service. It is a jaunty chandelier of beaten brass, perched now on a tall spire. Except for three bullet holes, which tradition says were the result of potshots by wandering Indians, the vane has borne his centuries well.

Wind Withers Entire Crop

The Chinese is an ever-welcome wind, but there is another hot wind that is decidedly the reverse. Farmers in the West and Southwest have seen their crops withered in a few hours by the coming of this visitor, says an American Magazine writer. Several years ago this hot wind struck the West at about 10:30 a. m., and in less than three hours the temperature had mounted to almost 120 degrees. In Kansas two men died while trying to go from Iola to Humboldt, a distance of eight miles. Three others were out with their teams at Humboldt. The horses died and the men almost succumbed.
